CLUB HOSTESS FOUND SLAIN AT CLEVELAND

Intoxicated Woman Smothered By Attacker's Dirty Hand Placed Over Mouth.

CLOTHING DISARRANGED

Coroner Says Scratches on Cheek Lend Support to Murder Theory.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Miss Justine Hartford, about 35, pretty night club hostess, was attacked and murdered early today, apparently by someone who encountered her by chance after friends had left her a few doors from her home.

Her body, with clothing disheveled, was found in a driveway a short time after she departed with friends at 2:45 a. m from the Kit Kat night club where she worked.

Coroner Samuel R. Gerber stated, after a post mortem examination, that death was caused by asphxio-suffocation, probably by the placing of a hand over the mouth.

The traces of a dirty hand on the face and scratches on the cheeks supported this theory, Dr. Gerber said

Intoxicated.

He added that tests indicated Miss Hartford was in an intoxicated state at time of her death.

She was last seen alive when she left the night club in the company of Miss Edna Twiggs, 28, and Miss Evelyn Staley, waitresses, and an unidentified male patron.

Miss Staley told police the man had driven the three women home. They arrived at Miss Staley's address first where she and Miss Hartford got out of the automobile.

Unsteady.

Miss Hartford, according to Miss Staley, walked unsteadily across the street toward her rooming house.

Miss Hartford's body was discovered sometime afterward by Mrs. Florence Woerne.

"I was awakened between 3 and 3:30 o'clock," she said. "I heard a thud followed by low moans for about a half minute. I thought it might be the cry of some animal.

"I was awfully frightened because I thought the noise was coming from my basement. I got up and stood in the dark for almost a half hour to see if the noise would come again.

"Finally, I happened to pull the shade aside and looked out the window. I saw the outlines of a body in the drive. I was too frightened to call the police for about five minutes, but then I realized it had to be done."

City's Sidewalk Program Delayed By Fund Shortage

Because the WPA is nearing the close of its fiscal year and has no funds to employ additional workers in the Richland county area, Mansfield's extensive sidewalk program will not be revived until after July 1.

The project, calling for the repair and construction of city walks had been scheduled to begin May 1. City council had approved the project and authorized employment of a sidewalk inspector.

Mayor William J. Locke said today that L. L. Kochenderfer, who was hired a month ago to contract for the sidewalk construction jobs had been laid off temporarily.

The mayor said he had been notified by WPA officials in Columbus that the project had been turned down until after July 1 because the government agency was not able to employ more men in Richland county.

He said that more than 25,000 square feet of new walks had already been contracted for but that construction would be delayed until WPA was able to furnish the men.

Community Fund Total Hits $55,165

Workers Confident Goal Will Be Topped; Meet Again Tuesday.

Enthusiastic workers in the Mansfield Community fund drive meeting at noon today to compile reports, expressed confidence that the goal of $57,500 would be topped considerably before the drive is ended.

Reports today totaled $4,216.40 and brought the whole amount pledged to $55,165.

Although the drive is scheduled to close Saturday night, Campaign Chairman Clyde K. Smaltz announced that in response to requests from many drive majors the final report will not be taken until Tuesday noon when a meeting will be held at the Evergreens cafeteria, place of today's session.

Extension of time will permit workers to round up all pledge cards, particularly those from persons who asked to withhold their pledges until Saturday which is payday at a number of business houses.

Leading today's reports again was the industrial division for which H. W. Arlin turned in $1,123.56, making a total of $35,975.75 in pledges obtained by this division.

Other Reports.

George H. Smith, major for the financial division, reported $680, bringing his division's total to $2,931. Other outstanding reports today included: clothing, Bart Haley, $526.90; total $1,811.90; public utilities, Robert Remy, $456.50; total $1,434.50; and food, James Hoffman, $410.75; total $2,313.60.

The drive for $57,500 for the operation of Mansfield's nine welfare and character building agencies for another year opened Monday.

With the automobile division as yet unreported, the remaining five groups have listed the following pledges obtained:

Organizations, $249.25; total $3,489; official $220.50; total $749.50; professional, $200; total $2,530.35; construction, $268.50; total $1,693; schools $81; total $1,415.80.

To date the industrial division is the only one which has attained its quota.

Hydraulic President Orders Night Shift Discontinued.

MT. GILEAD—President Howard F. MacMillin today ordered night operations of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing plant discontinued.

A three-foot drop of a five-ton hydraulic press in the erecting room of the plant early Thursday night was said to be immediately responsible for the order.

Suspension of the night operations had been under consideration for months because of personnel and operating difficulties," MacMillin said.

Roughly 75 men working in two shifts from 5 p. m. midnight and midnight to 8 a. m. were affected by the order.

'Speak Their Pieces' During Meeting Staged by League of Women Voters.

Eighteen Republican and Democratic candidates for the nominations for four county and state offices at the May 14 primary got a chance to "speak their pieces" last night at a forum session sponsored by the Mansfield League of Women Voters at the American Legion home.

Approximately 80 persons, about half of whom were candidates and their wives, heard the candidates for county commissioner, prosecutor, state representative, and probate judge tell of their qualifications for office.

The talks were limited to two minutes and some of the candidates were waved down in the middle of their talks.

The session was conducted by Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft, president of the Mansfield League, and Mrs. Frederick Grover of Oberlin, district director of the Ohio League of Women Voters.

More than a dozen other candidates for county and district offices were introduced by Mrs. Grover, but only those seeking

Police Throughout State Asked to Search for O. S. R. Fugitive.

Police officers throughout central Ohio were asked by Supt. Arthur L. Glattke to search for an Ohio State reformatory trusty who fled from the dairy barn last night under the cover of rain and fog.

Glattke identified the fugitive as James Root, 23, of Holmes county, whose escape was detected at 11 p. m. yesterday by dairy barn guards. Root was committed to the institution Oct. 9, 1939 to serve from one to three years on a charge of breaking and entering.

TORSO MURDER VICTIMS FOUND

Dismembered Bodies of Man and Woman Discovered.

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— The dismembered bodies of a man and a woman were found today in the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad yards near McKees Rocks.

The discovery immediately led to speculation whether the victims were slain by Cleveland's "mad butcher of Kingsbury Run," blamed for more than a dozen mutilation slayings in the last five years.

Dismembered with the skill of a surgeon, the body of the woman was found in an old box car that was about to be demolished and burned.

The man's body, also mutilated, was discovered elsewhere in the yards a short time after the first victim had been found.

IT'LL WARM UP

Weatherman Forecasts Spring Will Try New Foothold.

Spring, which has waged a constant battle with Winter ever since it appeared over the calendar horizon, is prepared to make another advance today or tomorrow.

However, the frosty forces which have stubbornly refused to admit defeat during the battle, were pretty firmly entrenched yet today as the temperature remained in the mid-thirties.

Cold rain that frequently changed to snow hammered at the fortress of spring again this morning, and may continue the assault tonight. But warmer weather is advancing, according to the weather man, and it will be warmer—but still cloudy—tomorrow.

Thermometers dropped to 32 last night.

Three Torso Murder Victims Discovered Near Pittsburgh

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH — Dismembered bodies of three persons, who might be the victims of the "mad butcher" blamed for 12 torso slayings in Cleveland, were found today in the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad yards in nearby Stowe township

Deputy Coroner Anthony Sappo said the word "Nazi" had been carved on the chest of the third victim, found several hours after the discovery of the first two torsos. One was identified as that of a woman.

All were found in boxcars which arrived here April 21 from Struthers O., 15 miles from New Castle, Pa., where the torso of a young man was found last Oct. 13 in a swamp

Sappo said the cars apparently had been sent to Struthers from Cleveland and re-routed to the Stowe township yards.

He added that a thorough search of the big repair yards would be made in the belief that "we might uncover other victims."

Dr. P. R. Helmbold, coroner's physician, said the bodies had been dissected by some one with a "knowledge of surgery" or a butcher. The bodies, he said, apparently were cut up with a butcher knife.

Heads of the victims were missing, but the arms and legs were found near the torsos. All were nude and there were no clues to the identity of the victims.

RURAL SCHOOLS HAVE 362 GRADS

Classes in 10 High Schools 29 Short of Last Year's Record of 391.

Ten high schools in Richland county rural districts and Shelby will graduate 362 seniors at commencement exercises during the last three weeks of May, a check-up with school officials showed today.

There will be 29 fewer graduates this year than in 1939 when the county schools set a record in graduating 391 boys and girls.

Commencement plans were nearing completion today in most of the schools. The annual graduation programs, busiest of the year for high seniors, will include baccalaureate and commencement exercises and in most schools a junior-senior dinner and party.

The week of May 20 is the most popular for commencement programs, at least five of the county schools choosing that week for their programs. They include Shiloh on May 22; Madison township and Bellville, May 23; Springfield township, May 24, and Union rural schools, May 25.

First of the commencement programs will be at Lucas May 17. Lexington seniors will receive their diplomas May 28, and the Shelby

ROME—Authoritative quarters said today that Italy probably would tighten her naval policy as the result of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's announcement that the British Mediterranean fleet was being reinforced.

Although the Italian navy already is maneuvering at full battle strength, naval circles indicated that Chamberlain's announcement would have the effect of keeping it in a state of "watchful waiting."

Thin Line of Norwegian Troops Remains To Stem Rapid German Advance Northward; Nazi Air Raids Catch Retreating Foe as They Embark to Safety.

(By Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM—Reliable sources disclosed today that British forces abandoned the Steinkjer front last night by ship from Namsos, leaving as the only British troops in Norway those besieging Germans at Narvik, far above the Arctic circle.

French forces were said to have departed from the Steinkjer front, 60 miles north of German-held Trondheim, one night ahead of the British.

Meanwhile German forces flooded northward through the broad southern lobe of Norway to follow up the earlier British retreat from the Andalsnes area, south of Trondheim, for a consolidation of positions in roughly half of Norway.

This area is inhabited by six-sevenths of Norway's 3,000,000 population.

To face the tide of Germany's mechanized and motorized forces of occupation the Allies were said to have left a thin line of Norwegian soldiery.

Any organized resistance by the Norwegians appeared to be only a matter of days and perhaps merely hours.

British troops were said to have fallen back to Namsos from the Steinkjer line and to have embarked under a rain of German bombs which killed 30 persons and wounded 60.

German airmen, trying to turn the withdrawal into a rout, made repeated attacks on Namsos, spreading new ruin and churning the ashes and debris of former attacks. Buildings were said to be smouldering and docks were a vista of tangled wreckage.

The German lines of field gray-green moved relentlessly up the Glomma river valley toward Trondheim, scattering Norwegians before them. Poeros, which the German advance guard had relinquished once, was reported recaptured.

Military observers said that the Norwegians could hardly hope to continue their resistance in central Norway without Allied aid.

And it appeared on the basis of the latest reports of Allied withdrawals that no such aid remained in Norway, save the forces ringing the German garrison at the ore port of Narvik, more than 400 miles north of Trondheim.

Between Trondheim and Narvik lies the most barren part of Norway—a strip of choppy coastline and tumbled terrain with but scant means of communication. The only rail line there goes directly east into Sweden.

Sweden herself breathed somewhat more easily in the belief that Germany now has no immediate motive at least for attacking this country; on the other hand, however, Sweden found herself squarely up against the matter of German control of her outlets to the west.

CHALLENGE: Do Allies Seek To Coax Mussolini Into War?

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

Developments in the strained relations between the Anglo-French allies and Italy during the past 48 hours strike me as constituting all but a direct invitation to Signor Mussolini to join Nazidom in the war if he wants to.

I refer, of course, to Britain's clearing of its mercantile marine from the Mediterranean, and British Premier Chamberlain's startling announcement yesterday that the Anglo-French battle fleet already was in those waters, headed for Alexandria bay.

One wouldn't go so far as to say that the Allies are trying to push Mussolini into the war—though stranger things have happened. They may even hope that he will reconsider his position and perhaps ultimately cast his lot with them. In any event it is a call for a show-down.

Indications are, however, that they are quite willing to take him on at any time.

It is my personal view that Mussolini has little affection for either the Allies or for Hitler. Italy has been suspicious of the Allies ever since the World war, charging that they didn't fulfill the territorial promises which brought the Italians into the war.

So far as regards Hitler, Il Duce probably admires his successes but never has liked the Nazi chieftain.

During recent weeks there has been a steady stream of intimations from Rome that Italy would get into the war on Germany's side when Mussolini thought the time was right.

If Italy should come into the war now Italian-Allied arguments over territories and Mediterranean power could be settled once and for all. Actually the Allies believe they could ham-string Italy by a blockade while the French army attacked from the north. That being the case, Germany would be deprived of valuable aid.

Greece and Turkey presumably would join the Allies immediately. They fear Mussolini and his ambitions much more than they do any other man or state. Their entrance into the war might give the Allies a chance to attack Germany from the rear.

When you consider all aspects of the position it is easy to see why the Allies may not be reluctant to take Italy on for a fight.

Senators Demand U. S. Fighting Craft Be Improved

NEW SEA AND AIR DEFENSE NEEDS CITED

Navy Secretary Edison Called to Outline Program For Warship Revisions.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Admissions by the chief of the army air corps and the secretary of the navy that American airplanes and warships must be redesigned in the light of European war developments brought demands from senators today to "slow down" the national defense expansion program.

Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, told a senate appropriations subcommittee yesterday that several technical changes must be made in the army's airplanes if they are to be a match for those being used by Germany.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison told a press conference Wednesday that a general revision of warship design is necessary to offset the "temporary advantage" now held by bombing planes over surface craft.

Edison Called.

Edison will be called before the senate naval affairs committee next week to outline a proposed warship modernization program. Possibly including a "whale back" ship. Committee Chairman David I. Walsh said Edison would be asked to expand his views on warship construction in connection with a house-approved bill authorizing an 11 per cent increase in naval strength. His decision to reopen the hearings was the result of recent reports from Norway.

Arnold's testimony was on a $785,000,000 army supply bill for 1941. It brought immediate charges from Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, R., Mass., a member of the committee, that all U. S. military planes are "obsolete," according to European war standards.

Sens. Alva B. Adams, D., Colo., and Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., also expressed opinions that the army's planes would have to be redesigned. Adams has been an advocate of "slowing down" the expansion program to take advantage of technical advances revealed by the war.

Improvements.

Arnold told the committee that German planes, equipped with a .37 millimeter gun, have demonstrated tremendous fighting power and that American planes would have to be redesigned to provide for:

1. Non-leakable, self-sealing gasoline tanks.
2. Heavier gun power since ordinary machine guns are no longer considered particularly effective in air combat.
3. Armored protection for pilots and crew members.

The Germans are using all three of these "improvements," committee members said they were told. The .37 millimeter guns, it was said, are capable of bringing down a plane with one or two hits; the heavy armor encases pilots so securely that ordinary machine gun bullets never reach them.

Canadian Aviator Saves Passengers In Damaged Ship

EDMONTON, Alta. — (INS) — How skillful handling of a heavily loaded transport plane saved nine persons from possible injury or death was revealed today as airmen lauded Pilot Ted Field for one of the greatest feats in the history of northern aviation.

About to land at Edmonton airport late yesterday after flying in from the Yukon with six passengers and a crew of three, Field discovered the wing flaps of his big plane were jammed. As he tried to work them free one flap broke loose and it was all the pilot could do to pull his ship up from a too-quick descent.

Field zoomed up and for an hour circled the airport while his mechanics daringly leaned out and attempted to repair the flaps. Two women among the passengers knelt in prayer.

Finally, with his gasoline supply almost exhausted, Field radioed the airport that he was going to attempt a landing, and ordered fire apparatus and ambulances to stand by.

Carefully side-slipping and using rudder control, Field sped earthward, his speed unchecked by the now-useless wing flaps. As airport attaches stood breathlessly by, Field executed an almost-perfect 3-point landing.

JOINT FINDING

$2,022 Shortage Held Against Ex-Ashland Treasurer, Son.

State Examiner Walter W. Shafer today returned a joint finding for recovery of $2,022 against H. O. Faber, former Ashland county treasurer, and his son and deputy, Olen L. Faber.

The finding was based on an alleged shortage in the handling of sales tax stamps. The examination covered the period from July 1, 1936, to April 22, 1939.

Faber resigned last year after an earlier finding was returned against him. His son, Olen, is serving a term in the Mansfield reformatory for embezzlement in connection with the shortage in the treasurer's accounts. He was recently granted a parole to become effective early next year.

SUICIDE ENDS BAIL SCANDAL

N. Y. Police Captain Shoots Self When Retirement Order Rescinded.

NEW YORK — (UP) — Police Captain Max Finkelstein, involved in the past few days in a bail bond scandal, killed himself today.

Finkelstein was best known as the Jewish police officer assigned in 1938 to guard the German consulate against anti-Nazi demonstrations.

He was commander of a police station in Brooklyn borough. Yesterday he applied for a $2,500 yearly retirement pension.

Police Commissioner Jewis J. Valentine approved the retirement and relieved him of duty but on receiving a report from Special Prosecutor John Harlan Amen that three years ago Finkelstein had been involved in bail bond irregularities, Valentine revoked the retirement and ordered Finkelstein back to work.

Finkelstein was 59. He had been in the police department 29 years. His body was found in the bathroom of his home at 7 a. m. by his wife and daughter. He was shot through the head.

CLEVELAND PARACHUTE JUMPER ALL SET TO CAPTURE HITLER

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Joe Dunkel, the "Flying Dutchman," was all set today to capture Adolf Hitler and collect the $1,000,000 reward offered by a group of Pittsburgh business men.

All he needs is $25,000 expense money.

Joe, the big idea man who has run the parachute jumps at the National air races for some years past, refused to reveal his exact plan for the capture of the German leader, but he wired Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, the man who made the $1,000,000 reward offer public, that he was ready to go.

"Right now on Long Island," Joe declared, "a Lockheed plane is waiting. I have a pilot and a radio man and we can't miss.

"My end of the deal is to send a telegram to Mr. Church and get $25,000 in advance. As soon as he lays in on the line, we're off, and the million bucks is as good as ours."

Joe said the telegram he sent Church read:

"Plans complete for Hitler venture. Need $25,000 to partially defray expenses of transportation. Wire instructions and cash. We take off on receipt of expense money."

That, declared Joe, was all he could afford to wire.

Joe has had several spectacular ideas, such as attaching a small automobile to a parachute and then dropping it from a plane, and setting a world parachute jump record from a stratosphere balloon. Other ideas of his have worked.

"For a million bucks," said Joe, "we can't miss."

MT. GILEAD — William Oliver Swam, 81, a native of Maryland, died here yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Carl Bombarger, with whom he had made his home, after a brief illness.

Born in Freeland, Md., Mr. Swam was a former shipping clerk at the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing company here, retiring in 1935. He was a member of the Edison Methodist church.

Surviving are two sons, Herbert of Springfield and John of Chicago; three daughters, Mrs. Victor Brown of Waterford, Mrs. Glenn Thomas of Marion and Mrs. Bombarger, and a sister, Miss Mary Swam of Baltimore, Md.

The body will remain at the Bombarger home until 11 a. m. Sunday when it will be taken to the Craven funeral home where funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Rivercliffe cemetery.

SAYS MINIMUM TERM MUST BE CARRIED OUT

Attorney General Discloses Kidnapers Should Not Be Sent to O. S. R.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—An attorney general's opinion revealed today that the Ohio pardon and parole commission had paroled a Seneca county bank robber two years before he was even eligible for a parole hearing.

The request for the opinion, which came from the state welfare department, cited the case of the prisoner who was received Feb. 29, 1932, with a minimum sentence of 20 years to be served. He was released on parole Jan. 2, 1940, slightly less than eight years after he had entered the penitentiary.

Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert ruled that prisoner in the penitentiary whose minimum sentence was 15 years or more could not come before the commission until he had served a full 10 years with no allowance of 11 days a month off for good behavior. The good behavior deduction is granted prisoners with shorter sentences.

Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, who declined to reveal the name of the prisoner, said it was undecided whether there would be an attempt to return the man or permit him to remain on parole.

The director said his department was as much interested in the case of the freed man as in the cases of a dozen other men in the same category who are still in prison.

Herbert also ruled that a prisoner convicted of kidnaping or bank robbery should be sentenced to the penitentiary rather than the Mansfield reformatory even though the prisoner is no more than 16 years old.

The attorney general also held that a prisoner convicted of the burglary of an inhabited dwelling may be sent to the reformatory if less than 21 years old.

FUNERAL SET

Rites for Mrs. Brooks to Be Saturday at Ontario.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at the family home in Springfield township and at 2:30 p. m. at the Ontario Community church for Mrs. William S. Brooks, 71, who died at her home Wednesday after an illness of several months. Rev. E. H. Thompson will officiate.

Born in Springfield township, near the present Brooks home, Mrs. Brooks spent her entire life in Springfield township. She was an active member of the Ontario church.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. R. E. Mentzer of Lexington; five sons, Russell, Charles, James and John all in Richland county, and a brother Dr. C. E. Trimbel of Crestline.

ENGINEERS PICK WOOSTER MAN

Association Elects Mansfielder as Vice-President.

Henry Lear of Wooster was elected president and Walter E. Rusk, Mansfield, vice-president of the Northcentral Ohio Association of Professional Engineers at the group's annual meeting Wednesday night at Mifflin Inn.

Other officers chosen were Harold H. Slater of Wooster, secretary, and Ira Baker, Bucyrus, treasurer. Rusk is deputy Richland county engineer.

Principal speaker at the session was H. E. Nold of Columbus, president of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers. He talked on "Engineering As a Profession."

The Northcentral Ohio association includes Richland and a number of other counties in this area.

Gave Dime To Victim Who Had Only 10 Cents In Purse.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Finding only ten pennies in a woman's purse he had snatched, a youthful gunman tossed a dime to Mrs. Sophie Lugina, 30, with the remark:

"Here, I guess you can use this more than I can."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Tales From Times Square.

Not all the big names on Broadway belong to the traditional celebrities with tough hearts and short memories. One of the lads who sits in Lindy's long after midnight was telling a tale to prove this the other evening, and the hero of the tale was one of the hardest—and one of the softest—guys who ever strolled across Times Square: Jack Dempsey.

Nineteen years ago, he related, Jack knocked out Georges Carpentier in a sensational bout and was touring the country as a vaudeville attraction. In September, 1921, he landed in Philadelphia, and during his stay there he went with Jack Kearns to visit the plant of the Philadelphia Inquirer. The editor assigned a copy boy named Dave Dennis to show the champ and his manager through the building.

For three hours the boy, who was only 11, guided the two men past presses and linotype machines and typewriters, explaining the workings of a newspaper.

At the end of the tour, Dempsey patted the young commentator's head and said: "If there's anything I can do for you, don't forget to ask for it."

And he left town and the years passed and the kid grew up. He became, not a newspaper man, but a violinist and arranger. A few weeks ago he organized his own band.

And one day not long afterward, he bumped into Dempsey on Broadway, and re-introduced himself. Dempsey asked him what was new.

"I've got a swell band," said Dennis, "but I can't find a decent spot to play in."

"Well," grinned the champ, "how about my restaurant?"

He remembered the old promise, and not only installed Dennis' orchestra in his place, but built a bandstand and a dance floor, and is paying for four weekly radio broadcasts!

* * *

Boo!

Allen Prescott was at the Beachcomber the other night when Bela (Dracula) Lugosi wandered in. "What'll it be?" asked the bartender. "Zombie?"

"No," replied Bela, languidly. "Make mine a small bier."

* * *

Valuable.

Henny Youngman was one of a group discussing the current international situation at Colbert's the other dinner-time, and he recalled the quip attributed to George Bernard Shaw during the first World war.

Some heckling acquaintances in London asked the playwright why he wasn't at the front fighting to save civilization.

"I," replied Shaw, "am the civilization they are trying to save!"

* * *

Easy.

Harry Carey, one of the more modest thespians around town, was being praised a few evenings ago at the Stork club for the great audience reception he earned by his excellent emoting as the vice-president in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

"Well," rejoined Carey quietly, "like any vice-president, I didn't have anything to do—and they just happened to like the way I did it."

* * *

Correction.

Jimmy Durante is telling the one about the Broadway comedian who visited the famous Cradle in Evanston, Ill. The receptionist asked him, "You wish to adopt a baby, sir?"

"Heck, no," said the comedian. "I want to marry one!"

* * *

Silly.

There are almost as many pigeon stories flying around Broadway as there are pigeons. One of the newest, as passed along by Wayne King, concerns the carrier pigeon "somewhere in Norway" who had been sent by an English general to an important post in Trondheim. A vital message had gone with the bird and the general and his forces were impatient for a reply. After several days of feverish waiting, the pigeon returned.

Breathlessly the troops gathered around the bird. The general raised his hand for silence. And it was the pigeon himself who broke the hush.

"I'm sorry," he cooed, "but what did you say that address was again?"

* * *

Beginning.

Sam Harris, in a mellow mood at Bill's Gay Nineties the other night, was recalling to a group of youngsters how, many years ago, he led one of those Paul Jones dances at a Friar's Frolic.

You know, one of those mass participation affairs in which somebody blows a whistle and then everybody grabs a partner. During the course of the dance a friend came up to Harris and pointed out a pretty redhaired girl.

"Do me a favor, Sam," he begged. "When I get close to her, blow the whistle."

Sam did—and that, he chuckled, is how Florenz Ziegfeld met Billie Burke!

* * *

Oblivion.

It is comforting to know that the U. S. postoffice is unimpressed by glamor or yards of newsprint. Greta Keller, the singer, wrote a letter to her friend Hedy Lamarr out in California last week and inadvertently wrote the wrong street number.

Yesterday the letter was returned to Greta.

And stamped: "Address Unknown."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—I don't like to complain, but it seems to this corner Hollywood's new suits are pretty tame affairs compared with yesterday's.

They just don't have the "color" any more, and I don't mean the Messrs. Menjou, Crosby, Raft and Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom have given up racetrack checks. I'm talking about legal suits.

Look at this Paramount vs. Don Ameche thing. No "style," no "angles," just dollar-and-cents tiffing.

Ameche turns down a picture at Paramount after Ameche's 20th Century bosses have loaned him for it. Ameche just won't have any part of, or in, "The Night of January 16th." Thereupon, the studio's plans for the picture collapse like a phony plot, with the director Mitchell Leisen and the co-star Barbara Stanwyck balking at the consequent delay and seeking other fields. Paramount says it's cost a pretty penny (about $170,000) to prepare for the picture with Ameche in it, and it's asking that much in chilly cash from Ameche in recompense. Twentieth Century, meanwhile has suspended Ameche in a spirit of co-operation, but lifted the ban when it needed him for "Four Sons."

Don hasn't had anything to say about all this, and maybe the courtroom, if the suit gets that far, will splash on some "color," but it still won't be like the old days.

* * *

Those were the times. They called names and invented sobriquets. There was Jeta Goudal, in that colorful altercation with the Great One (C. B. DeMille) over Jeta's "temperament." C. B. said the foreign actress was so all-fired emphatic about things there was practically no working with her and Jetta brought in the matter of "temperament" as a valuable, integral asset in an artist's equipment. C. B. triumphantly labeled her a "continental cocktail of emotions" and sat back confidently—only to hear the judge agree with Jeta and hand her the palm of victory.

The last really "good" suit we had was Warner Bros. vs. Bette Davis. Over in England that was, and sparks flew when the studio took to court the matter of Bette's contract and Bete's desire to skip it. Bette lost, but not before opposing counsel had opportunity to call her a "naughty young lady who wants more money" and the defense had rung in vivid pictures of Bette as a Warner "slave" serving a "life sentence" under contract.

* * *

The Warner-Cagney fuss was a humdinger, too. Plenty of name-calling all around, with a dramatic through-the-side-door victory for Jimmy when he discovered the Warners, at one theater, were billing Pat O'Brien over Cagney, in violation of the Cagney contract.

No, I haven't much hope for the Ameche-Paramount business. Nobody's going to call Don a "cocktail of emotions," or a spoiled darling, or anything smacky like that. It looks like a crassly commercial, dollar-and-cents scrap.

A Reliable Local Man Adds Praise For Vendol Medicine

Tells How It Relieved Dizzy Spells, Sour Gassy Stomach, and Other Troubles Due to Constipation. Advises Everyone To Try It.

MR. KIRK WOODS

"I had been bothered for years with constipation and this often made me feel dizzy, head ached, spots danced before my eyes, my tongue was coated, and every morning I'd awaken feeling tired, drowsy, and with a bad taste in my mouth," declared Mr. Kirk Woods of 78 Park Ave., Mansfield, reliable employe of the Purdy Construction Co., to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Drug Store.

"When I bent over it felt like blood would rush to my head and I'd have to steady myself for a few seconds. If I ate certain foods like fried potatoes, pies, or raw apple, my stomach would soon be sour, fill up with gas, and the heartburn would be awful; then when I'd go to bed I'd be rest

COLLECTION OF ESSAYS, BOOKS ON WAR READY

'Land Is Ours' and 'River Out of Eden' in Library's New Fiction List.

Among the new non-fiction books at Mansfield Public library this week is a collection of essays and biographical sketches by the late Harvey Cushing on his medical career.

Duncan Aikman has drawn a vivid picture of our neighbors to the South, and Paul French has presented the views of 25 Americans who think we should keep out of foreign wars. A new book by Allen Dulles and Hamilton Fish Armstrong also deals with the problem of our neutrality.

Two historical novels, "The Land Is Ours" by Louis Zara and "River Out of Eden" by Shirley Seifer, are on the fiction shelves now, as is John Harriman's "Winter Term," the story of an American boys' school.

Non-Fiction Books.

THE MEDICAL CAREER by the late Harvey Cushing is a collection of essays and biographical sketches. The essays deal with modern and historical aspects of medicine and the sketches report the patient efforts of some American medical pioneers. Dr. Cushing's words describe not only experiments but also personalities as he shows the dogged determination of men fired with a holy zeal to ease and prevent human suffering.

THE ALL-AMERICAN FRONT by Duncan Aikman is a clear, realistic appraisal of our neighbors to the south. He shows how very much their goodwill may mean to us in the near future.

COMMON SENSE NEUTRALITY edited by Paul Comly French presents the views of 25 outstanding Americans who believe we should remain away from foreign wars. From various walks of life they offer different opinions, agreeing however on the basic concept of peace for America.

CAN AMERICA STAY NEUTRAL? by Allen W. Dulles and Hamilton Fish Armstrong warns that we cannot legislate peace, but must support every reasonable move toward world peace and should help limit the scope and duration of the present conflict.

Other non-fiction books on this list: NEW WAYS IN PSYCHOANALYSIS by Horney; CO-OPERATION TO THE FINNISH, Bakken; CULTURE HISTORICAL METHOD OF ETHNOLOGY, Schmidt; CHURCH AND STATE, Sturzo; FOREMANSHIP AND SUPERVISION, Cushman; STUDENT CONGRESS MOVEMENT edited by Judson; 100 GAMES OF SOLITAIRE, Coops; MR. PITT AND AMERICA'S BIRTHRIGHT, Long, BENJAMIN N. CARDOZO. Hellman; FAILURE OF A MISSION: BERLIN IN 1937-1939, by Henderson.

New Books of Fiction.

LAND IS OURS by Louis Zara is the story of the Northwest Territory from the time of Braddock's defeat in 1775 to the withdrawal of the Indians across the Mississippi in 1835. Andrew Benton's captivity with the Shawnees gives us a sympathetic and realistic picture of the Indians and their white enemies.

RIVER OUT OF EDEN by Shirley Seifert is an exciting novel of the founding of St. Louis. Andre Theriot went up the Mississippi from New Orleans with a group of traders taking a cargo of arms and ammunition. On the way there were river mishaps and Indian attacks.

WINTER TERM by John Harriman is a story of a boys' school in America and the trying experiences of some pupils and some masters. In its understanding of boy psychology the book approaches the charm of "Goodbye Mr. Chips."

Other fiction: YOUNG MAN FROM MOUNT VERNON, by Pier; MR. SKEFFINGTON, Elizabeth Russell; WHEN THE WHIPPOORWILL, Rawlings.

Will They Say 'I Do' Soon?

Latest Hollywood figures to be linked romantically are Olivia De Havilland and James Stewart, featured screen players. Reporters insist the two will wed some day—and it may be soon.

APPLY OIL TO 25 MILES OF CITY STREETS

Officials Expect to Get Job Started Soon After Council Acts Next Tuesday.

Oiling of approximately 25 miles of unpaved streets and alleys, a project that constitutes the major part of the annual summer street maintenance program will be started within the next 30 days.

Legislation authorizing the street department to proceed with the work is scheduled to come before council at its May meeting Tuesday night. Approval is expected.

Charles Hebel, superintendent of streets, said today that grading of the streets preliminary to the application of the oil had already been started, although wet weather the past few weeks has slowed up the job.

He said he hoped to have the major portion of the unpaved roadways ready for the oil by the latter part of this month.

A total of about 240 streets and alleys will be treated to prepare them for summer use and eliminate dust which would otherwise exist. The entire program is expected to be completed in about 60 days, Hebel said.

Holds Contract.

Application of the oil will be done by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company which has the contract with the city for the material. The contract price of .543 cents per gallon calls for application on delivery.

The purchase price is slightly less than that of six cents per gallon paid by the city in 1939 when approximately 65,000 gallons was used. The total cost of the oil last year was $8,110.

DIVORCE CAUSE

SALEM, Mass.—(INS)—Add reasons for divorce: Henry A. Tarr, 29, Gloucester, told a probate judge that Mrs. Muriel A. Tarr, 26, who he said admitted he "was still a swell guy" preferred to keep a general store for her grandfather to living with him. The plea was taken under advisement.

Takes First Place

Ringside Tops Commercial B League Bowlers; Hold Banquet Thursday.

RINGSIDE NITE CLUB won the championship bowling title of the Commercial B league alright. But if you want to know who got second and third places you'll have to wait until Roy Vaughn, secretary of the league, does a little checking and re-checking.

Vaughn said today that it wasn't hard to see who won first place, but that the next three places are a different proposition. All are so close that it will take considerable time to untangle and compute the official results.

* * *

However, Vaughn hopes to have the thing cleared up by next Thursday, when the league will hold its annual banquet and present a few trophies.

* * *

Harry Campbell ran wild in the first game to chalk up a 269 for a new record in the Commercial B league last night. He added games of 190 and 166 for a 625 to set the individual pace. Henry Heiser scored a 602.

Maybe It's Not Worthwhile To Get Excited Over Dodgers

By JUDSON BAILEY

It doesn't pay to become too enthusiastic about a baseball club winning one game. In fact, no one knows right now whether it's worthwhile getting excited about a team winning nine games — even in a row.

* * *

Yet a glance at the National league standings today will show anybody interested that the New York Giants are in third place and a thought about the manner in which they subjugated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 yesterday might convince some that they may stay there.

* * *

The Giants this year have a team in which the veterans are too old and the rookies too young. But the grey-beards are full of wisdom and the no-beards are filled with enthusiasm.

Making a delayed start against their first western opposition of the season, the Giants got 14 hits yesterday and got one of the best jobs of relief pitching any team in the big leagues has received this season. Lefty Cliff Melton took charge with none out in the third and hurled six innings giving up only two hits.

Bad weather washed out all but two of the major league contests yesterday In the other game the Detroit Tigers downed the Washington Senators 5-3 on the six-hit hurling of an 18-year-old rookie, Hal Newhouser. Rudy York helped with his first home run of the season with one on in the second and also smacked a triple that didn't figure in the scoring.

This put the Tigers hot on the heels of the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians, who are tied for the lead in the American league.

Heroes and Goats

(By International News Service)

HEROES—Rudy York whose home run proved the decisive blow as Detroit downed Washington 5 to 3; Cliff Melton, whose splendid relief hurling helped the New York Giants beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

GOATS—Terry Moore Cardinal outfielder, who slipped and fell while fielding Nick Witek's hit, allowing it to go for a home run.

Buddy Baer to Fight Tonight

Meets Natie Mann, New Haven 190-Pound Stripling.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Another of those Mutt and Jeff affairs is scheduled for Madison Square Garden tonight when Natie Mann, New Haven's 190-pound stripling, attempts to bowl over California's 243-pound Buddy Baer.

* * *

Mann is a 6 to 5 choice in what little betting there is. The boys along Broadway seem to be afraid of this one, and the consensus seems to be that it is merely a question of which fighter quits first.

* * *

Some of the cognescenti believe Baer will decide to "retire" long before the 12-round limit, just as he did against Gunnar Barlund. On the other hand others, with a picture of Mann gracefully being counted out on one knee before Tony Galento, think Mann will be the first to fold.

Rain, Cold Washes League Contests

PORTSMOUTH — (AP) — Rain and cold weather were the big winners of the Mid-Atlantic league's scheduled opening day, washing out two contests and holding attendance below 1,000 at the third, but the Portsmouth Red Birds took it in stride for a 7-1 victory over the champion Canton Terriers.

* * *

Canton was unable to score after the first inning off the slants of Clem Dreisewerd, veteran Red Bird southpaw, and contributed to Portsmouth's seven-run total by making seven errors. Dreisewerd allowed eight hits, but fanned 12 and walked none.

* * *

Today's schedule: Akron at Dayton, Canton at Portsmouth, Charleston at Youngstown.

MAXIN IN FEATURE

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Headlined by a fight between Joe Maxin, national amateur middleweight fighter hereabouts, a 13-bout program for the Medical Benefit fund of the Amateur Boxing Trainers' association will be held in the arena tonight. Maxin fights here May 16.

Reds Entertain Phillies Today

Gene Thompson Slated For Mound Duty.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Done out of another chance to show the Brooklyn Dodgers what's what, the Cincinnati Reds entertain the ever accommodating Phillies today amid the rigors of an arctic May.

* * *

Gene Thompson, posted to pitch against Brooklyn in yesterday's frozen-out game, is still Manager McKechnie's choice. Kirby Higbe is the Phils' hurler.

* * *

Yesterday's postponement meant a day of worry as well as rest to the rookies among the Reds. A postponement gives a manager too much time to think and the May 15 deadline for reducing the roster to 25 men is coming up fast.

The roster now numbers an even 30. Five men will be called in during the next 12 days and told that they need another year of seasoning before they're ready.

The Reds are feeding eight men who are out-and-out rookies—Pitchers Elmer Riddle, Joe Beggs, John Cannon and Johnny Hutchings, Outfielder Mike McCormick, Infielder Damon Phillips, and Catchers Bill Baker and Neil Clifford. Three more are marginal cases—fellows who have been up before but still have to prove themselves. They are Pitcher Red Barrett, Outfielder Vince DiMaggie, and Infielder Don Lang.

* * *

In addition there are a couple of veterans like Lew Riggs and Wally Berger who might be of more use to some other club, at a price.

* * *

Only 18 members of the whole team have been on the field so far, leaving 12 whom McKechnie knows only by memories of the training season and brief appearances in pre-game practice.

RELEASE PITCHER

ST. PAUL — (UP) — Woodrow (Woody) Rich, Boston Red Sox right-handed pitcher, joins the Louisville club of the American association here today. Rich, who won four and lost three for the Sox last season, was released subject to 24-hour recall.

Braves Idle Until Sunday

By CHARLES MARTIN

RIDING along in the top berth of the Ohio State league standings, the Mansfield Braves today were hoping for a break in the weather so they could hold at least one practice session before invading Tiffin Sunday afternoon to clash with the Mud Hens.

* * *

Gaining the lead by virtue of an impressive 18 to 5 triumph over Lima in the league opener at the Fairground Wednesday night, the Braves were to meet the Pandas at Lima yesterday afternoon, but the contest was postponed because of wet grounds.

* * *

Mansfield returns to the Fairground Monday night to face the Mud Hens under the floodlights. Monday night will be "Moose Lodge" night, and the Braves' officials are planning today to handle a capacity chowd.

Happy over the performance the club turned in against Lima, Manager Dewey Stover today planned to use the same lineup at Tiffin Sunday. Frank Kress of Niagara Falls, N. Y., a righthander, is to toe the rubber.

When the Braves return Monday Mansfield fans will see another new hurler on the mound. Stover stated today that Dick Farkas, righthander, will toss 'em. Farkas, a Cleveland boy, is expected to be one of the regulars this season.

Dick Morse, who replaced Frank Ankenbrandt at third base in the second inning of Wednesday's contest, has impressed Stover, and may give Frank a battle for the berth.

Morse handled three chances faultlessly, and in four trips to the plate secured two bingles. This is his first year in professional ball.

None of the teams were able to play in the league yesterday. Today Findlay is scheduled at Fostoria and Tiffin is to play at Fremont. Lima and Mansfield are idle.

* * *

Other contests Sunday finds Fostoria at Findlay and Fremont at Lima.

* * *

Joe C. Hartline, president of the Mansfield club, said today that a special bus has been secured to take fans to the contest Monday. Transportation will be free. The bus will leave the corner of Third and Main streets at 7, 7.30, and 8 p. m.

Writer Says He's Got 'Hot One' on the Derby

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOUISVILLE—(U.P.)—Promise me you won't say a word about it. Cross your heart and hope to die you won't tell a living soul.

Listen—I've got something good in the derby.

* * *

This is confidential. It came to me from a friend of a friend of mine who knows a trainer who knows a trainer close to the stable.

* * *

I've got something that can't miss. A hide that has been waiting for this spot. His owner and trainer have waited three years until just the right race on the right day came along.

On Saturady they're going to drop him in a soft spot. He comes from a stable that not many people know about. He'll be carrying a strange and unfamiliar set of silks. A mixture of white and green. Lots of folks will shy away from this colt because of his little known connections.

I'm telling you again. Don't let any of these things frighten you off Don't pay any attention to his works. They don't mean a thing—much. Forget the track and how it is. Forget his past performances—if you can. And don't let that jockey who'll be up make you change your mind. Everybody knows he isn't the best. But that's part of the plan

Let me caution you against bothering about his price. Just bet him no matter what he pays. It still is better to win at even money than to lose at 50 to 1.'

Another thing: the fact that my tip has only run eight times before doesn't mean that he is a green hand, short of work, and not ready for such a race as the derby. You understand, of course, that when I speak of the derby I mean the Kentucky Derby and not the English Derby or the Arkansas Derby, or the Santa Anita Derby or the Brown Derby or Al Smith's Derby, or even, the lovely little town, Derby, Conn.

In short, I mean the race which I once termed the Blue Grass classic. That reminds me. I wish to hell people wouldn't steal that line. I made it up and I'm tired of every radio announcer, advertising agency and rival columnist using it.

By this time you must be a bit eager to know this hot, super-special, straight-from-the feedbox, bit of information. All right, you'll get it.

The horse is by Black Toney and a Trionne. The silks, green with white hoops. The rider, Freddie Smith. The stable, E. R. Bradley. Code name Bimelech.

Keep your mouth shut like you promised and we'll get all of 1 to 10.

Indians Invade Capital City

Feller Gets Bid for First of Two-Game Series.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians moved nearer the crucial stage of their initial eastern invasion today, with Bob Feller slated to hurl the first of two games with the Senators. Washington nominated southpaw Ken Chase for the opener.

* * *

The Redskins, tied for the league lead with Boston, invade the Red Sox park for a three-game series after finishing with Washington. Two contests in New York will wind up the trip.

* * *

Rookie Mike Naymick lost his second starting chance of the season as rain halted the Cleveland game in Philadelphia yesterday. The big Weirton (W. Va.) lad may not get another nomination on the trip, as Al Milnar is scheduled to hurl tomorrow, with Willis Hudlin, Johnny Allen and Feller due to face the Red Sox.

Manager Oscar Vitt has indicated he will concentrate on southpaw pitching in the two Yankee tussles, which means Milnar, Harry Eisenstat and Al Smith will carry the burden.

Cleveland prestige suffered somewhat by Philadelphia's even break in the two games with the tribe. Vitt says he won't juggle his starting lineup while the team stays in first place, but it is no secret that the outfielders are on the spot as the club goes into the "hard" games of the seaboard invasion.

* * *

Jeff Heath and Roy Weatherly hitting .271 and Ben Chapman .245, not impressive averages for gardeners. Heath has shown the most power, hitting three homers and driving in 10 runs.

* * *

Rollie Hemsley is the only regular batting over .300, the reformed catcher showing a .326 average. Ken Keltner is hitting .295. Lou Boudreau .292; Hal Trosky .262, and Ray Mack .256.

Enter Red Streaks In Newark Relays

Mansfield high school today was one of 17 schools entered in the Newark Relays to be held at Newark Saturday. Mansfield filed their entry today.

Coach Harry Mchock said that 25 Red Streaks would make the journey to Newark Saturday for the first annual Newark Relays. Newark high school officials plan to make the meet an annual event.

Star Pitcher Millers' Jinx

Lefty Bob Logan Has Set Back Kansas City Twice.

(By Associated Press)

The pace setting Minneapolis Millers of the American Association agreed today there was one hitch in their current pennant plans—one Mr. Lefty Bob Logan.

* * *

The Millers have won eight games and lost three in the two week old association race. Two of the setbacks have been at the hands of the Indianapolis southpaw who is undefeated in four starts.

* * *

Logan got his second Miller decision yesterday, a 13 to 6 rout thanks to 19 hits by his mates It broke a seven-game winning string for Minneapolis.

Some 1,651 persons turned out at Kansas City to welcome home the defending champions. The Blues won, 10 to 7, but not until after last place Columbus had thrown in a scare by taking a 5-0 lead in the fifth inning.

In the only other game, St. Paul defeated Louisville, 4 to 1. Art Herring shut out the Colonels until the ninth and contributed a home run to aid his own cause.

Findlay Gets New Player-Manager

FINDLAY—(U.P.)—George Ruley, 22-year-old catcher from Lexington, Ky., was appointed playing manager of the Findlay baseball team in the Ohio State league today.

* * *

He succeeds Grover Hartley, veteran diamond campaigner and owner of the club who will devote his full time to the business end and serve as coach. Hartley managed the team for the last three years.

* * *

Ruley will be the youngest pilot in the six-club league. Findlay is the defending champion.

TRAPSHOOTERS GATHER AT TRAVERS ISLAND

NEW YORK—(AP)—Eleven former champions are listed among 200 of the nation's leading trapshooters who will gather at the New York Athletic club's Travers Island traps today for the opening of the 35th annual amateur trapshooting championships.

Joe Heistand of Hillsboro, O., doubles champion, will compete again.

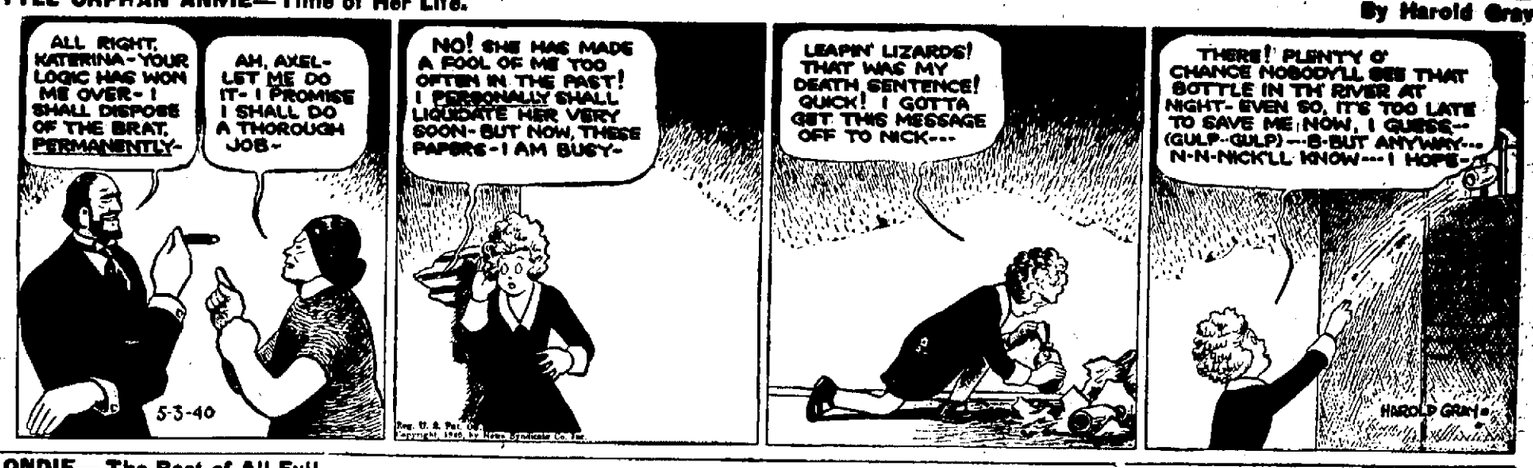
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE— Time of Her Life. By Harold Gray



ALL RIGHT, KATERINA - YOUR LOGIC HAS WON ME OVER - I SHALL DISPOSE OF THE BRAT, PERMANENTLY-
AH, AXEL- LET ME DO IT- I PROMISE I SHALL DO A THOROUGH JOB-
5-3-40
NO! SHE HAS MADE A FOOL OF ME TOO OFTEN IN THE PAST! I PERSONALLY SHALL LIQUIDATE HER VERY SOON- BUT NOW, THESE PAPERS - I AM BUSY-
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! THAT WAS MY DEATH SENTENCE! QUICK! I GOTTA GET THIS MESSAGE OFF TO NICK---
THERE! PLENTY O' CHANCE NOBODY'LL SEE THAT BOTTLE IN TH' RIVER AT NIGHT- EVEN SO, IT'S TOO LATE TO SAVE ME NOW, I GUESS-- (GULP--GULP)---B-BUT ANYWAY... N-N-NICK'LL KNOW---I HOPE-

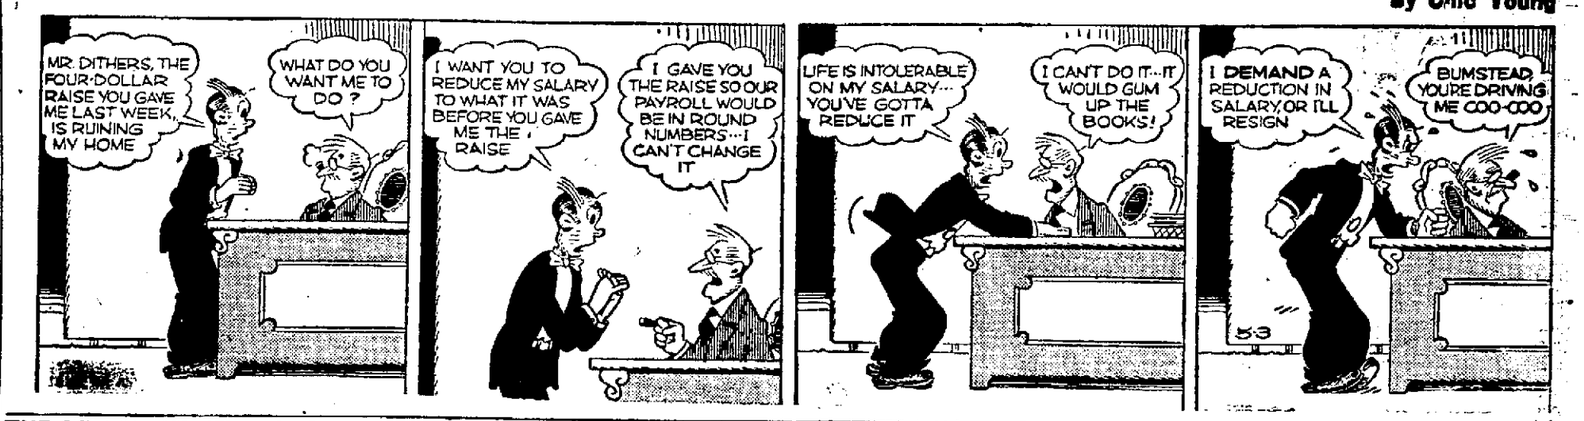
BLONDIE— The Root of All Evil. By Chic Young



MR. DITHERS, THE FOUR-DOLLAR RAISE YOU GAVE ME LAST WEEK, IS RUINING MY HOME
WHAT DO YOU WANT ME TO DO?
I WANT YOU TO REDUCE MY SALARY TO WHAT IT WAS BEFORE YOU GAVE ME THE RAISE
I GAVE YOU THE RAISE SO OUR PAYROLL WOULD BE IN ROUND NUMBERS---I CAN'T CHANGE IT
LIFE IS INTOLERABLE ON MY SALARY... YOU'VE GOTTA REDUCE IT
I CAN'T DO IT--IT WOULD GUM UP THE BOOKS!
I DEMAND A REDUCTION IN SALARY, OR I'LL RESIGN
BUMSTEAD, YOU'RE DRIVING ME COO-COO

THE NEBBS— We Thought So. By Sol Hess

NEBB, YOU CERTAINLY DID A GOOD JOB LAST NIGHT-ONE OF THE BEST IMPROMPTU SPEECHES I EVER LISTENED TO-LET ME CONGRATULATE YOU AGAIN
5-3
MR. NEBB, I DON'T WANT TO RUSH YOU BUT I HAVE A DIRECTORS' MEETING AT ELEVEN AT WHICH TIME I WANT TO PROPOSE THIS NEW POWER PILL CORPORATION OF WHICH YOU ARE TO BE PRESIDENT AND THE GUIDING POWER
THAT'S A TENTATIVE AGREEMENT GIVING US POWER TO ORGANIZE THIS COMPANY AND FLOAT THE STOCK - I PRESUME YOU HAVE THE AUTHORITY TO SIGN?
SURE - I'M THE BUSINESS END - EMBERT LEAVES ALL THAT TO ME AND I PUT ALL THE DOUGH INTO IT

BRICK BRADFORD— Seeks the Diamond Doll. By William Ritt and Clarence Gray

HOW ARE THE TWO THUGS WHO WERE SHOT DOWN IN THE MUSEUM HOLDUP, CAPTAIN?
OH, THEY'RE RECOVERING - LIKE TO TALK TO THEM!
THE DUKE HIRED US FOR THE JOB, SEE? BUT WHO THE DUKE WAS WORKING FOR I DUNNO
BRICK AND THE CAPTAIN QUESTION THE TWO THUGS
IT WAS THE DUKE WE WAS DOIN' THE JOB FOR- AN' HE GETS AWAY AND WE GET WINGED AND STUCK HERE! WHAT A BREAK!
I BELEIVE THOSE MEN ARE TELLING THE TRUTH - THEY DON'T KNOW WHO WAS BEHIND THAT JOB!
THEN IT'S UP TO US TO CATCH THIS "DUKE" AND MAKE HIM TELL!

MICKEY MOUSE— Goofy Gets a Rise Out of Mickey. By Walt Disney

HI-YA, PARDNER, OL' PAL! ANYTHIN' NEW ABOUT PETE?
NO! ALL I'VE LEARNED FROM THE WOMEN IS THAT HE LIVES IN A VALLEY SURROUNDED BY IMPASSABLE MOUNTAINS!
I CAN'T FIGURE IT! THEY SAY HE LIVES IN HIGH STYLE--- YET HE'S THE ONLY ONE WHO KNOWS HOW TO GET IN OR OUT!
HE BLINDFOLDS THE WOMEN WHEN THEY GET TO THE MOUNTAIN, BUT THEY SAY THEY GET A SENSATION LIKE AN ELEVATOR- ---!
WELL, SAY— THAT MAKES IT EASY! WE GOT 'IM NOW, MICKEY!
ALL WE DO IS LOOK FER A MOUNTAIN WITH AN ELEVATOR IN IT--- AN' THERE WOULDN'T BE MORE'N ONE!
PLOP!

BRINGING UP FATHER— By George McManus

YES-MRS. ELLA VATION- WE'RE HERE IN DALLAS-THAT IS-NEAR DALLAS, TEXAS-MY HUSBAND LOVES TO WEAR A TEN-GALLON HAT AND THE COWBOY SUIT I BOUGHT HIM- OH-YES-WE LOVE IT HERE-
WELL-YOU'RE BACK AGAIN-DEAR- MY, YOU LOOK SO STUNNING- BUT DON'T YOU FIND THAT TEN-GALLON HAT VERY WARM TODAY?
YES-IT IS- BUT I LIKE TO KEEP IT ON-
I'LL SAY IT IS WARM-TH' TOP OF ME HEAD IS ON FIRE-
BUT IT'S A GRAND WAY TO BRING CORNED BEEF AN' CABBAGE TO ME HOTEL ROOM-

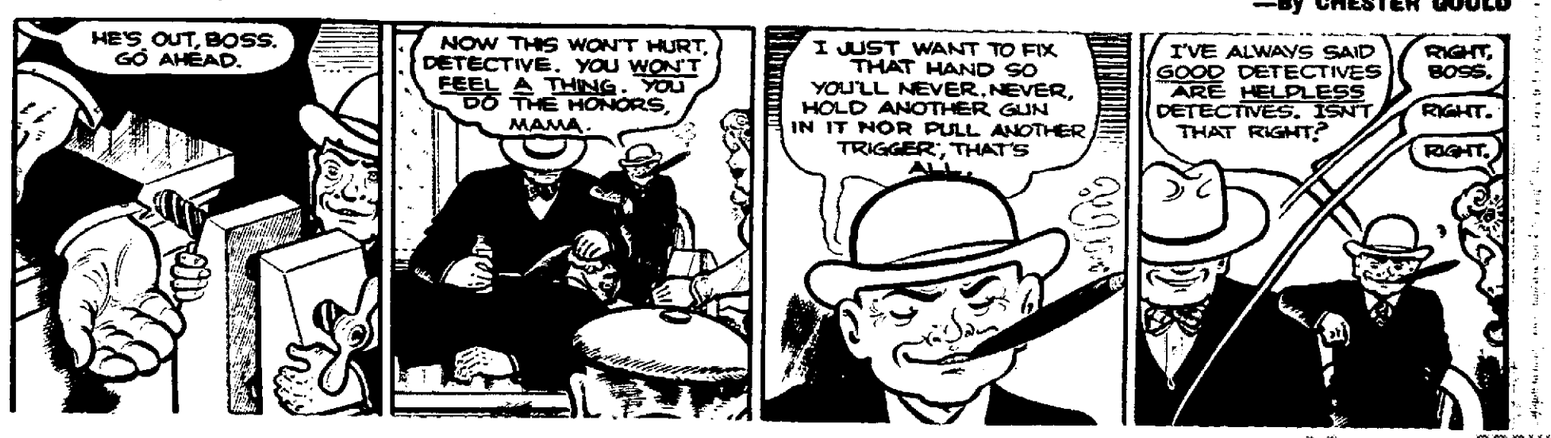
PRINCE CHARMING, BAH! THAT FLOORWALKER CALLED YOU "JONES"- I DEMAND YOU TO EXPLAIN HOW AND WHY YOU CRASHED BABY'S COMING OUT PARTY!
SHH--- PLEASE, MRS. GUMP- I CAN EXPLAIN IT ALL LATER- THE BOSS IS COMING AGAIN!
VERY WELL, MISS- WE'LL SEND THE SHOES RIGHT OUT TO YOU- THANKS FOR YOUR PATRONAGE- OH, PLEASE, MRS. GUMP, LET ME CALL AT YOUR HOME TONIGHT- I'LL EXPLAIN EVERYTHING THEN-
ALL RIGHT, MISTER JONES! AND YOUR EXPLANATION HAD BETTER BE GOOD!

DICK TRACY— Vise Squad. —By CHESTER GOULD



HE'S OUT, BOSS. GO AHEAD.
NOW THIS WON'T HURT, DETECTIVE. YOU WON'T FEEL A THING. YOU DO THE HONORS, MAMA.
I JUST WANT TO FIX THAT HAND SO YOU'LL NEVER, NEVER, HOLD ANOTHER GUN IN IT NOR PULL ANOTHER TRIGGER, THAT'S
I'VE ALWAYS SAID GOOD DETECTIVES ARE HELPLESS DETECTIVES. ISN'T THAT RIGHT?
RIGHT, BOSS.
RIGHT.
RIGHT.

TRY TO PROMOTE RECOVERY MOVE AMONG ISSUES

Trades, However, Fail to Attract Following; Few Issues Get Mild Support.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Traders attempted to promote another recovery move in today's stock market but failed to attract a following.

Receiving mild support were Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, North American, Anaconda, Johns-Manville, Great Northern and International Paper. Montgomery Ward dropped to a new low.

Rapidly shifting European war developments provided scant encouragement for speculative forces.

Bonds were steady. Commodities and foreign securities markets were mixed.

Boardrooms studied the survey of Dun & Bradstreet which found this week's retail spending, while behind that of the preceding week, topped, the comparable period last year by 6 to 10 per cent.

Form Civilian Group to Develop Mohican State Park

CITIES, TOWNS ORGANIZE TO FURTHER PLAN

Continuance of CCC Camp at Park to Be First Task of Civic Association.

A permanent civilian organization to promote interest in the development and maintenance of Mohican State park was set up last night at Loudonville when representatives from cities and towns in the nearby vicinity met to protest removal of the CCC camp at the park.

Representatives from the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, and garden and nature clubs of the city attended the meeting.

George A. Mead, chairman of the parks and city beautification committee of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, was named a director in the permanent organization. Each town in the district chose its own director last night. The directors will meet next Tuesday at Loudonville to perfect the organization and elect officers.

Mansfield representatives at the meeting last night were Mead, John G. Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Walter L. Beckley, of the city beautification committee; Miss Florence A. Wagner and Mrs. Tom Ford of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club; Mrs. Deming Lowrey, of the Buckeye Garden club; Mrs. John Conard and Mrs. H. A. Smith of the Cottage Garden club; and Lloyd H. Barr and H. M. Spandau of the Mansfield Nature club and the Izaak Walton League.

Routzon said today that the immediate objective of the organization would be to launch a movement to keep the CCC at Mohican park. It is now under orders to move June 1.

Beyond that, the organization will promote the present and future development of the park and attempt to have the present acreage expanded, with permanent maintenance.

Principal speakers at last night's meeting were O. A. Alderman, state forester stationed at Wooster and Bryce Browning, secretary of the Muskingum Conservancy district. Browning said that when the artificial lakes made by the conservancy dams are completed and the adjacent land beautified, these together with Mohican State park, would provide this section of Ohio with one of the finest outdoor recreational centers in the state.

Attending the meeting last night were representatives from Mansfield, Mt. Vernon, Loudonville, Wooster, Ashland and a number of smaller towns in nearby counties.

Map Plans to Develop Charles Mill Lake Area.

Plans for developing the Charles Mill lake area into a recreation center were mapped yesterday afternoon by representativs of the Muskingum Conservancy district, state highway and conservation departments and National Youth administration at a session at Mifflin.

Proposing an NYA project for the construction of two large parking areas, docks for rowboats, picnic grounds, and rest rooms at the lake behind the Charles Mill dam, the group then chose a committee of eight members to draw plans for the project.

Preliminary plans call for completion of the work by July 1 when the lake will be opened to fishermen. Most of the work would be done by NYA labor.

Named on the committee to draw up the project were G. A. Brown, Norwalk, area NYA supervisor; E. L. Wickliff, head of the fish management division of the state conservation department; Carl Warren, agent of the game management division of the conservation department; C. I. Kimmel and J. R. Van Atta, enforcement officers of the state fish and game department; C. C. Chambers, chief engineer of the Muskingum Conservancy district; C. S. Ross, landscape architect of the state highway department, and R. C. Monnett, Ashland district traffic engineer of the state highway department.

Crawford County Veteran Officer Near Retirement

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Brig. Gen. Lorenzo D. Gasser, deputy chief of staff of the army, reached the retirement age limit of 64 today and will be succeeded June 1 by Brig. Gen. William Bryden.

General Gasser won the distinguished service medal for his World war services as a staff officer with the AEF.

A native of Lykens, Ohio, in Crawford county, General Gasser started a 42-year military career in 1898 when appointed captain of volunteers in the second Ohio infantry. He entered the regular army in 1901 after having taken part in several engagements in the Philippine insurrection.

In the Sino-Japanese fighting at Shanghai in 1932 he commanded the 31st infantry which was dispatched to the trouble scene from Manila, along with other American forces in the area.

General Gasser became deputy chief of staff last year after having commanded the 16th infantry brigade at nearby Fort George G. Meade, Maryland.

VENIRE OF 22 NAMES CHOSEN FOR RICHLAND JURY SERVICE

A venire of 22 names from which the April term Richland county petit jury will be chosen had been drawn today by the county jury commission.

The jurors will not be asked to report until Monday, May 13, court attaches said, because nearly all of the persons indicted by the new grand jury pleaded guilty and there are no criminal trials on the docket.

First case set for hearing before the jury involves a $50,000 damage action as the result of the death of Mrs. Ethel Goon, Mansfield, and injuries suffered by her husband, Wilbert Goon, last September 30 in a traffic accident in East Mansfield.

Goon filed the suit against Nicholas V. Quintero of New York City, owner of the car which collided with one in which Mr. and Mrs. Goon were riding.

The jury venire includes: Mrs. Ollie F. Evans, 145 Fifth street; Arthur Riggle, Jefferson township; Raymond Wolford, Bloominggrove township; Estella Galbraith, Troy township; Jesse Gugler, Bloominggrove township; Samuel Anderson, 809 Maple street; Fred P. Emmer, 190 Bowland road; Guy Taylor, Troy township; William Hirth, Troy township; Walter Wiles, Washington township; Ernest L. Smith, 757 Bowman street; Clara M. Peale, 239 Cline avenue; B. V. Stover, 166 Vennum avenue; Mrs. Edna Berlo, 40 Cedar street; Mrs. Mabel Torrence, 105 Vennum avenue; Ray Howman, Butler township; Harley Mills, Washington township; William Murray, Butler township; F. C. Van Wagner, Plymouth; Harold McClure, Sandusky township; David Feiser, 617 West Russell road, and Fred C. Harding, Bloominggrove township.

WIFE SLAYER'S SANITY TESTED

Manslaughter Charge Planned In Ohio Farm Tragedy.

NEWCOMERSTOWN — (U.P.)—A sanity test for Roy Kail, 54-year-old farmer who killed his wife, was postponed today until after funeral services are held for Mrs. Kail tomorrow.

Prosecutor Ralph Finley and Sheriff Wayne T. Host had planned to test Kail's sanity today at Massillon state hospital but they indicated later they would wait until after the funeral.

"If Kail is not insane, manslaughter charges likely will be filed against him," Finley said.

BLOWS TRADED

Mississippi Governor Fights Editor of Newspaper.

JACKSON, Miss. — (INS) — Gov. Paul Johnson of Mississippi barred himself against interviewers today and was reported "resting" in the executive mansion following his brief but rough and tumble fist fight last night with his long time political enemy, Maj. Frederick Sullens, Jackson newspaper editor.

The two men battled in the lobby of the Walthall hotel in downtown Jackson and before amazed onlookers could separate them both were bleeding.

Statements as to how the fight began were conflicting, but all witnesses were agreed that the chief executive and Major Sullens exchangd a number of hard blows before they were stopped.

HOUSE BOOSTS EXEMPTION IN WAGE-HOUR ACT

Author Norton Says Bill Now 'Disgrace to Country' as It Stands.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The house labor committee's wage-hour bill, at one time wearing an administration label, was loaded so heavily with exemptions today that its chief sponsor denounced it as "a disgrace to the country."

Rep. Norton (D-N.J.), who made that comment, expressed despair of stopping the legislation in the house, however, and told members to go ahead and add as many more exemptions as they chose.

She predicted that the bill would have "a long sleep" in the senate labor committee.

After the house called an armistice yesterday to noisy and bitter debate over amending the wage-hour law, Mrs. Norton wearily estimated that "under the guise of help to the farmer more than 2,000,000 industrial workers have been voted exemptions from both wage and hour standards."

Three amendments which were adopted, she said, would exempt "all industries handling any agricultural product."

Besides farm amendments, the house also voted to exempt from the law commercial and industrial workers receiving $1,500 or more a year or $200 or more a month.

It was offered by Rep. Case (R-S.D.).

Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill.) obtained an hours' exemption for small wholesale grocers. Members approved a proposal by Rep. Gwynne (R-Iowa) to exempt employes of all newspapers with a circulation under 5,000.

TAX RECEIPTS

QUICK RETREAT LEAVES NORWAY ARMY HELPLESS

Thin Norwegian Force Tries to Stem Rapid Advance of German Troops.

Norwegians followed the Germans south toward Tynset. It was reported that they actually retook Tynset. German troops yesterday, however, heavily reinforced, drove northward again.

There was a stiff fight at Os, seven miles south of Roeros, where the Glomma river bends for a few miles on an east-to-west course. Os is on the north bank.

The Germans attacked with the support of a few tanks and some field guns.

Last night, finding their positions untenable, the Norwegians and Swedes withdrew to positions just north of Os. They dynamited the bridge over the Glomma at Os and thought they had stopped any immediate advance on Roeros even if they were compelled to retreat.

The Germans fired mercilessly on Os, and flames from houses struck by artillery shells could be seen plainly from Roeros. German planes cooperated.

Germans Ask Where British Turn Next.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN —(AP)— Foreign office quarters, proclaiming the Allied withdrawal from Andalsnes "a catastrophic defeat," today defied the British to find "success elsewhere" while Adolf Hitler suddenly broke his silence to reiterate that the war was a fight for existence for the Germans.

Speaking before 6,000 army and air force officers and leaders of the SS, black-shirted elite guard in Berlin's sportspalast, Hitler said the conflict is "a fight for being, or not of being, of the German people."

Foreign office quarters asserted that Prime Minister Chamberlain, forced to look to other fields to wipe out the stain of the Norwegian defeat, was threatening action in the Mediterranean but "come what may, Chamberlain will find Germany prepared for a counter-blow."

The German high command concurrently announced rapid progress of the German forces in Norway in the clean-up against "isolated" resistance, acknowledged that the Allies were squeezing the Nazi garrison at Narvik, in the far north, and summarized claims of new blows against Allied sea power.

DNB, German official news agency, in its daily front summary, this afternon reported "lively reconnaissance activity north of Steinkjer," 60 miles of Trondheim.

Namsos, British foothold in that region, 35 miles north of Steinkjer, therefore seemed to be the goal of the German forces

The condition in general there was described as still unchanged.

The high command said the navy destroyed two submarines in the Skaggerrak while warplanes on May 1 scored hits on at least one aircraft carrier, and posibly two, and one destroyer and on May 2 "severely damaged" a cruiser, attacked another cruiser and sank a transport ship.

Affirming Germany's readiness for any British counter-blow as a result of the Norwegian defeat, foreign office circles said.

"We ask Chamberlain before the world: who is the next victim of British plans for widening the area of combat?"

Royal Air Force Bombs Nazi Bases.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — British spokesmen today reemphasized Britain's determination to fight on in Norway while the arrival of powerful British-French naval forces at Alexandria stressed the Allies' determination to be on guard in the Mediterranean against any German or Italian move.

As if in confirmation of statements that the war in Norway would go on the air ministry reported new successes for Royal Air Force bombers in raids on German bases in Denmark and Norway.

In the face of reports from Stockholm that the Namsos region north of Trondheim had been abandoned by the Allied forces as was the Andalsnes sector to the south, and that both moves indicated to general Allied withdrawal, one reliable military source said:

"The government of Norway is still in being and we have no idea of abandoning it or the campaign."

While other authorities supported this statement, there was no word, official or otherwise, on the situation at Namsos.

The Stockholm reports said the British left the Steinkjer-Namsos area last night, and the French the night before, thereby abandoning the northern jaw of the pincers by which the Allies sought to capture Trondheim.

The air ministry communique revealed that the British warplane shad been engaged in protecting the convoy of warships and transports by which the British army withdrew from Andalsnes was being carried "elsewhere," as Prime Minister Chamberlain announced yesterday, without indicating whether it was bound for another Norwegian battlefield or one more distant.

While diplomatic circles predicted a severe test for Prime Minister Chamberlain's government when the house of commons begins its inquiry into the Norwegian campaign next Tuesday, the prime minister himself conferred for half an hour today with opposition Leader Clement R. Attlee and Deputy Leader Arthur Greenwood.

The average Briton was shocked by Chamberlain's announcement of the withdrawal from southern Norway.

The Evening News commented that the man in the street will take a good deal of convicing before he joins Mr. Chamberlain's placid satisfaction that 'the balance of the advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces.'"

American Freighter Raked By British Fire.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — British machine gun fire from a bomber over Bergen harbor raked the deck of the American freighter Flying Fish during the recent battle between Allied and German forces, members of the crew said today in an NBC broadcast when the ship arrived in New York.

The description of hostilities in the war-torn Scandinavian port was the first to reach this country. Capt. W. W. Wollaston, 50, a native of Denver, Colo., also said the Flying Fish was hit in the battle between German sea forces and British aviators.

Bullets splattered against the freighter's superstructure, he said, when a land "fortress was firing on a plane."

The skipper offered this explanation hesitantly after first declaring the bullets "were probably from a plane that flew overhead."

A crew member identified in the broadcast as George Gilbert said there could be no doubt that it was a British plane that fired on the ship, flying an American flag at the time, but "I attribute it to the plane pilot's nervousness," he said.

Captain Wollaston also described the destruction of a German cruiser and German supply ship by British bombers during the battle

Three Mansfield Liquor Permit Holders to Get Hearings.

Three Mansfield liquor permit holders were ordered today to appear before the state board of liquor control in Columbus Tuesday on charges of violating liquor department rules

Dispatches from Columbus said they were among more than 40 permit holders cited as a wholesale drive was launched by the state against slot machines in liquor and beer establishments.

Those from Mansfield notified to appear before the board were Willis Wappner, operator of the Wonder Bar, 20 South Park street; Ben Sherwood, proprietor of Ben's Lunch, 200 South Diamond street, and Louis Woerth, owner of the Spotlight, 286 South Diamond street.

Liquor control board officials said Wappner was charged with selling intoxicating liquor after the 2:30 a. m. state closing hour, and that Sherwood and Woerth had been cited for selling intoxicating liquor on Sundays without permits.

FIND NO CLUES

Police Still Searching For Missing Ashlander.

ASHLAND—Police were without new clues today in their search for Murray Ricker, 29, who left his home here Monday and has not been heard from since.

A discription of Ricker and his car have been broadcast and police and highway patrolmen have been asked to watch for the car.

Acting Police Chief Miles D. McCarty said today that his department hadn't "a single clue" with which to start an investigation. He said yesterday that he was convinced Ricker was either a victim of amnesia or foul play.

Ricker disappeared Monday noon after transacting business in Mansfield and telling an acquaintence that he was in a hurry to get home.

Tippett of Bexley, Madison township and Lucas; Thurman "Dusty" Miller of Wilmington, Union rural schools; Dr. Frederick Roehm of Baldwin-Wallace college, Springfield township; Dr. Louis J. Wright, president of Baldwin-Wallace college, Shelby; Dr. J. L. Clifton, Ohio State university, at Bellville, and Supt. C. G. Keck of Shelby schools at Lexington.

The county's high schools outside of Mansfield and the number of seniors they will graduate are:

Union rural, 16; Lucas, 29; Lexington, 31; Shelby, 97. Butler, 31; Bellville, 34; Shiloh, 33; Madison, 39; Plymouth, 25, and Springfield township, 27.

The classes at Lucas and Bellville are much larger than last year, the number of seniors at Lucas increasing from 17 to 29 and at Bellville from 19 to 34. The Madison and Union schools showed marked decreases, however, with the Madison class dropping from 63 last year to 39 in 1940 and the Union class from 32 to 16 this year.

4-H CLUB MEETS

Miss Lila Mae Alexander of Bellfontaine was a guest of the Busy Bee 4-H club last night at a meeting at the home of Mrs. R. E. Dickson, R. D. 2. Games and contests were the diversion. Norma Jean Fletcher and Margaret Morris will entertain the group at Mrs. Dickson's home on May 15.

The government was plagued with a crop of rumors, among which were:

That British ships had been ordered home immediately from Genoa, which was denied at that port where the British freighter Baltara was still tied up. The ship's officers were quoted that they were proceeding on their regular itinerary and that they had received no orders to the contrary.

That Mussolini, in his conference yesterday with United States Ambassador William Phillips, had given assurance that Italy would remain at peace for at least 10 days. Informed sources said it was most unlikely that Mussolini had mentioned any time limit, since that might be construed as an ultimatum.

Recurring rumors that Italy planned to invade Jugoslavia, continued to bring strong denials.

CALLED TO ARMS

BUDAPEST — Determined to keep at least half a million men continually under arms, Yugoslavia today called the class of 1919 —100,000 men—to the colors.

Meanwhile, it was denied officially that Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, and King Carol of Rumania, held a secret meeting at a frontier village yesterday.

NEW NAZI ACTIVITY?

BERLIN —(AP)— A fresh indication of German activity in southeastern Europe came today with a report from Bucharest that Herbert Goering a cousin of Field Marshall Hermann Wilhelm Goering, is in the Rumanian capital seeking conferences with King Carol.

The report came as foreign office circles asserted Britain was planning to carry the war to a new sector, after the setback in Norway, and challengingly demanded whether it would be in Greece, Rumania or Yugoslavia.

STRIKE SETTLED

Chicagoans Again Have Milk on Breakfast Tables.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The city-wide strike of organized dairy employes which halted virtually all home milk deliveries was settled early today.

Representatives of the striking milk wagon drivers union and the associated milk dealers of Chicago reached an agreement after 12 hours of negotiation.

The milk drivers quit work Wednesday at the expiration of their contract calling for a basic wage of $48 per week, plus commissions. The dealers sought to lower the wage scale to $30, plus commissions

Under the agreement the dealers will pay drivers the old scale pending negotiations for a new contract.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY MAY 3, 1940.

When you stop to think about it, almost everybody is underprivileged.

The office pessimist has been quite worried because he isn't sure his coal supply will last through July and August.

So many other things have happened in the meantime that we've entirely lost sight of what ever happened to that fifth suit in a bridge deck.

Increase In Traffic Deaths

WHILE Mansfield is making serious approach to attempted solution of problems associated with traffic conditions in this city, it may be well to keep in mind that the first three months of this year show an increase in the traffic death rate in the United States.

Seven per cent more deaths have been recorded so far in 1940 as during the same period last year—450 more people killed in traffic accidents.

In view of the added emphasis on education and law enforcement such a statement is depressing. It indicates that entirely too many people are exercising what they regard as their "personal liberty" in the matter of speed and non-observance of reasonable rules of safe driving, instead of voluntarily complying with traffic laws and regulations.

It also indicates that drivers' licenses are in the hands of too many incompetent, reckless, drunken and mentally sub-normal persons who cannot be safely entrusted with the responsibility of operating a motor vehicle on streets or highways.

In Mansfield, thus far, little, if anything, has been done in the way of consistent enforcement of either speed limits or traffic regulations designed to induce safe driving and contribute to public convenience.

It has been the experience in other cities that continued, consistent and dependable enforcement of ALL traffic regulations tends to improve driving habits of motorists accustomed to speeding on city streets, disregarding stop signs, ignoring traffic lights and endangering pedestrians by reckless turns at intersections.

Unless there can be some assurance of co-operation of the police department in improving traffic conditions in Mansfield, other efforts along that line may appear rather futile.

Legionnaires In Norway

THE FAMOUS French "Foreign Legion," from which our American Legion derives its name, was formed in 1830 for service in northern Africa, and has seen service in many parts of the world. It has always been international, containing adventurers from everywhere, accepted on their personal merits with no questions asked.

Old timers may remember a sad poem in one of the McGuffey school readers about the "Soldier of the Legion" who "lay dying in Algiers," and the comrade who "knelt beside him while his life-blood ebbed away, and bent with pitying glances to hear what he might say."

And what was the dying soldier saying? He was murmuring metrically about beloved "Bingen on the Rhine" where he was born. And some readers wondered why a member of the French Legion should come from Germany.

Well, there are plenty of them today. A current news item says that the Legion now consists almost entirely of Germans. And they are fighting against Nazi Germans in Norway—a fact that throws a sudden, bright light upon Germany's internal situation.

Enjoyed Every Day's Work

LOOKING forward to forty-seven years of continuous employment is difficult, if not impossible, for a young person—yet such things can happen, and they DO happen.

Note, for instance, the case of A. E. Swain, 67-year-old Mansfield man who has just retired from service with the Pennsylvania railroad company, with which he took employment at the age of 19.

And note also, Mr. Swain's remark, as contained in an article in yesterday's News-Journal: "My work was always my hobby. I enjoyed it as much the last day as I did the first."

Then, too, notice the thoughtful consideration that Mr. Swain has given to pleasantly and profitably filling the leisure hours of earned retirement—community, church and fraternal activities, and travel.

All of which seems to fit together as a formula for a rather happy existence, and fewer regrets than might ordinarily be anticipated.

Where Demand Exceeds Supply

OVER the whole United States last week, says a dramatic writer, there were only 17 theatrical companies on tour. All of them together would not make a complete theatrical season for one city. Yet people around the country are said to be eager for flesh-and-blood drama, to supplement the film plays. There are values in a stage occupied by living players that cannot be supplied mechanically.

What is the matter with the living drama? If this demand exists, why is it not supplied? Why can not the American public, in a hundred cities, have the benefit of a living stage, with a season of real-life dramas every year? Amateur dramatics are flourishing throughout the country more than ever before; why are the professional companies missing?

The critic's reply is that theatrical people have had some failures with traveling shows, and that many are afraid to take the risk. Possibly, also, stage folks are less inclined to share in the chances of failure and are not so keen about "walking back" if a show is forced to close in the middle of a bad season.

More About Women Drivers

AN EXPERT from the drivers' bureau of Yale university boldly speaks the truth as he finds it. Women, he says, really are safer drivers than men.

This is not a matter of opinion, but of figures carefully gathered and studied. Surveys of thousands of drivers in four states showed that women drove about half the mileage of men but had only one-third the accidents.

It was learned further that "drivers alone drove faster than drivers accompanied by passengers. Drivers with strangers or distant relatives as passengers drove faster than when spouse, children or other close kin were in the car." This has been interpreted to mean that the back seat driver is a safety asset.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sardi's is a famous restaurant in West 44th street where theatrical people and writers frequently gather. The other night after the opening of "Morning Star" this scene took place:

Two men came in and sat near a table where a lone diner sipped a bowl of onion soup.

One of these men was Martin Gable, co-backer of the comedy, "Life With Father," and also producer of various radio shows, including "Medicine Show." Gable's companion was unknown to us, but they must have been discussing personalities, for this man suddenly inquired: "Who would you rather be than anyone else on Broadway?"

Gable thought that over for a moment. Finally he said, "Paul Muni."

Across the way the lone diner touched his napkin to his lips, got up, and moved across to where they were sitting. He bowed low. "I thank you," Muni said, "but for the life of me I can't understand why."

Gable almost fell out of his chair.

In our opinion the new south seas supper club, The Hurricane, doesn't quite come off. This is the spot that has gone Samoan-Tahitian-Hawaiian at considerable expense, but beneath the grass skirts there is still a little too much of Broadway. It is a lavish room, and one that its backers have high hopes of. Maybe these hopes will be justified. To us it seemed as if a lot of nice little Broadway chorus girls were merely playing charades for the evening. It isn't their fault. We liked the music—both the rhumba and the Hawaiian, the latter by Eddie Bush. But when we go to see hula dancing we like for the hula to be hula!

* * *

Take it from Ezra Stone, the horses have changed. After sampling the pari-mutuels at Jamaica, Stone came wagging his head back to Broadway—with this cockeyed yarn:

Two horses, it seems, were grazing in a pasture when an impudent little filly scampered past.

Horse No. 1—"What's she got to be so stuck up about?"

Horse No. 2—"Plenty. Her old man happens to be Man O' War. He just gave her 250 bales of hay—and mister, that ain't money."

* * *

As it was in the beginning, is now, and always will be, the circus this year is a big hit in New York. The same old thing—the tigers, the leopards, the clowns and the acrobats—yet they never fail. Any other show that didn't come up with a complete assortment of new material would languish and die. But the circus never changes. And it prospers every year.

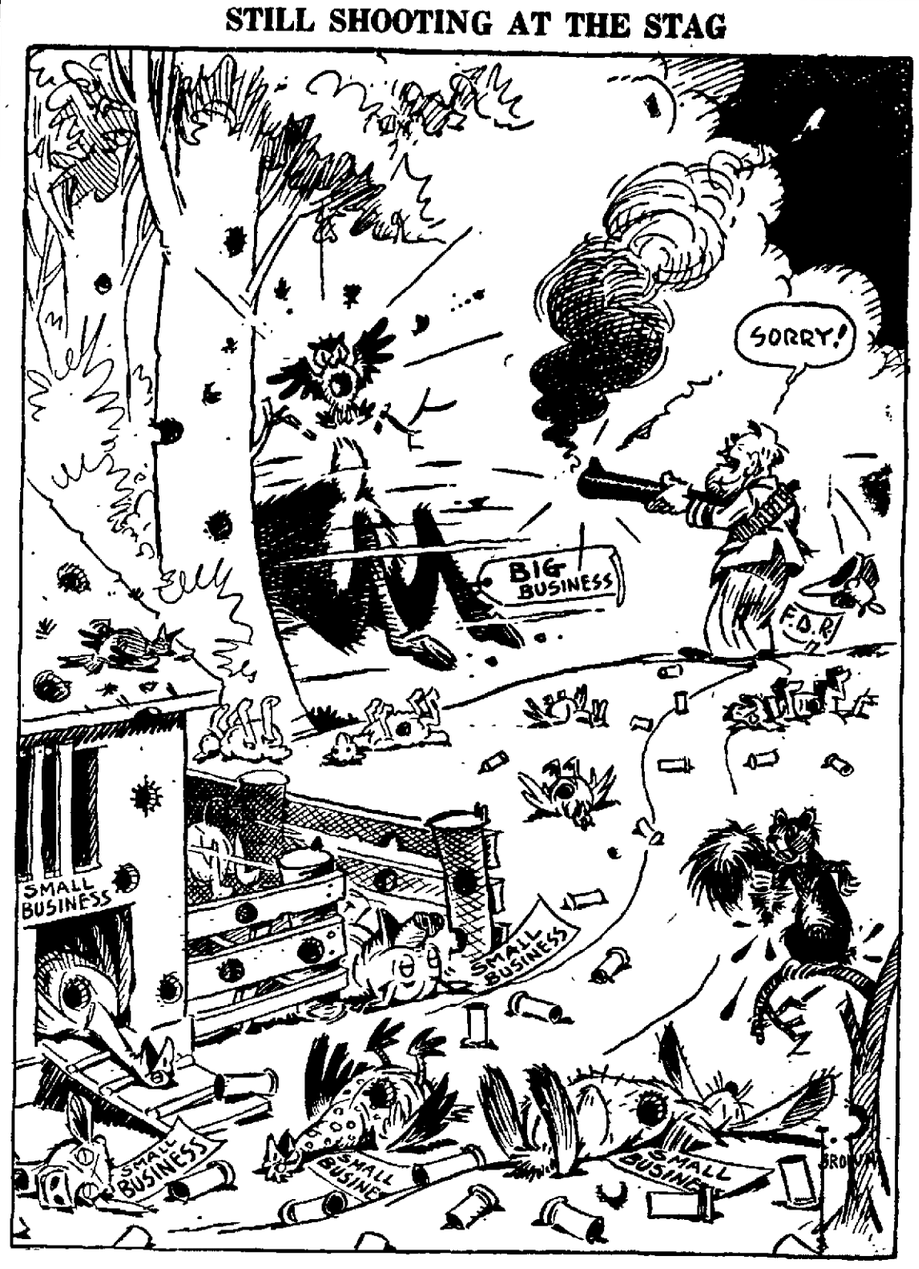
STILL SHOOTING AT THE STAG



Listen, World!

Snap Out of It, Young America!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SNAP OUT OF IT, KIDS! Stop telling yourself you're the Lost Generation. Stop feeling you've been Done Dirt. Stop sulking about your Wrongs. You're kidding yourselves—and it's time someone called your bluff.

Maxine Davis hands it to you straight—and on the chin—in the May issue of COSMOPOLITAN. It's a fighting article, fighting the discouragement in yourselves — something which you're turning into one of the most vicious rackets in America.

"Too many young people today are making their youth an inglorious career," says the writer.

"The generation which should be the strength and vigor of the nation is becoming a chronic invalid, whimpering that it has been crippled by the economic system, whining that it is martyred by its elders, and shrilly asserting its right to crutches," continues Maxine Davis.

Meaning what? Meaning simply, darlings, that a lot of you are throwing a tantrum or going into the sulks simply because you're seventeen, and should have your ears knocked down.

I'm strong for youth. I have the good fortune to edit the largest journalistic youth department in the world today. I glory in American youth, its vigor and enthusiasm. But I could take a baseball bat to the adolescent cry-babies who think the whole world has handed them a marked deck, just because it can't get a job the first time it asks for it.

Why should you get a job the first time you ask for it? The simple fact is you're not worth a job the first time you ask for it. You don't know what life's all about. You can't be depended to carry on. Yes, maybe you have graduated from a business school, or even college, but you still don't know life—its stresses and strain.

But you have been spoiled—plenty. You've been told you're the most beautiful girl and the most brilliant boy that ever hit the human arena. Well, maybe, at that, you are. But it takes lots more than beauty and brilliancy to play this human game. It takes patience and punch—something you won't develop for years. It takes staying power . . . and philosophy and humor; something that has never yet sprouted in young blood.

But you don't want to wait to grow up. You want everything handed to you on a silver platter—right now, or else! You want to have nicer dresses than mamma, and a faster car than papa, and you neither want to wait for them nor work for them.

As Maxine Davis says,

"Our young people today have all too often lost their courage, their individual initiative. They face life defeated, and they wait for something to come to their assistance. They want to be helped to a secure job; and they want that job to be a good one, too. They organize to voice these demands."

That's telling you, youngsters, and you should listen. It isn't, of course, true of all of you. There are thousands of you who are making as sane and brave a fight as your fighting forefathers ever did. There are thousands of you who are making heroic records despite poverty and obscurity and social injustice.

But there are also thousands of you who are making pests of yourselves with your high-falutin' notions—just because you're seventeen and nobody has the spunk to take you to the woodshed.

You complain that jobs are hard to find. As a matter of fact, as the article shows, there are far more jobs today than there were four years ago. The world is making room for you. It's turning back somersaults to accommodate you. But most of you don't want just ordinary jobs. You want the sort of job dad finally achieved by the time he was 40 . . . and the sort of gowns mother has only seen in the store window. You can't be bothered with starting low and climbing slow, as the human race has always done.

Here's another blast from the same source:

"Since our boys and girls between 16 and 25 have been making a career of youth, they have come to believe not only that they are entitled to jobs, but that they are entitled to good jobs. They don't want to start at the bottom. They are bored and dismayed and indignant at the errand boy openings. They want to start, if not precisely at the top, well up the ladder. The girl wants to be a secretary—not a stenographer—as soon as she frames her diploma. The young man wants his first position to be that of a salesman, not as a stockroom helper . . . They do not make the best of it, make a good job of it; they feel cheated."

These remarks aren't based on an adult grouch. They were gathered from an intensive survey made by the American Youth Commission in the state of Maryland. They were reported from hundreds of interviews with young people who preferred to lie around on the front veranda and let dad pay for their chow rather than take a job which they considered inferior to the scope of their master minds.

Well you've got to get over it, youngsters. The fact that you're 17 is no SPECIAL TREAT to this modern world. We've all been 17 once. We've all thrown tantrums once, too. And gotten our panties plenty well kicked for doing so. So here is my tip to you—with thanks to Maxine Davis—

CUT OUT THE SULKS AND GET GOING!

GRAB THE FIRST JOB THAT OFFERS!

IT MAY NOT BE MUCH OF A CHORE, BUT IT WILL PROBABLY BE BETTER THAN YOU ARE. AT THAT, YOUTH IS A NICE TIME. BUT ISN'T GOD'S GREATEST GIFT TO HUMANITY. NOT BY A DARN SIGHT!

A Flogger Meets Justice.

A leader of the revived Ku Klux Klan was convicted in an Atlanta court as a flogger who undertook to try neighbors on gossip and hearsay and to administer revenge with a whip. The judge immediately gave a sentence of a year on the chain gang, six months in jail and $1,000 fine.

The fact that there was a conviction and that it was followed by a severe sentence, may have a desirable effect in checking the rise again of this un-American cowardly terrorism.

When there is certainty of quick law enforcement against these self appointed guardians of the community, that type of barbarism will be abated.—Toledo Blade.

Health And Diet

Fixing Blame In Cancer Deaths.

—By DR. CLENDENING

IF CANCER were personified as a public enemy and tried in each case of death as a defendant, it would probably be surprising to find how often a fair-minded jury would discharge it as not guilty. It is not so much cancer itself that is responsible for the calamity, but the ignorance and carelessness, neglect and dilatoriness on the part of the person who has what might be an early cancer.

Such imaginary trials have been recounted by Dr. Russell S. Ferguson, of the New York State Cancer commission. In one case "a good friend" advised Mrs. B. not to undergo an unnecessary operation but to take some serum injections, against her doctor's advice. The verdict of the jury was that Mrs. B. was slain by good intentions.

Ignorance and Neglect.

In another trial, the doctor said, "I advised Mr. A. when the ulcer on the skin of the face was still small and harmless to have it eradicated, but he refused all treatment. When I was called two years later, his condition was beyond medical help." The jury's verdict was that Mr. A. died of ignorance and neglect.

The doctor said in the case of Mrs. D., "I attended her at childbirth and afterwards called attention to an injury and advised her to undergo a simple operation. She ignored my advice." The jury's verdict was that neglect and fear were the real culprits.

These stories indicate that the most important thing for the public to know is the natural history of cancer.

A cancer consists of the sudden growth of cells in a certain place in the body. What makes these cells start to grow we do not know. It is not contagion or infection because another person can be exposed to them without ever catching cancer.

An old theory was that they were embryonal rests, that is to say, very young cells which remained in a body in a pre-natal condition until it was adult, and then suddenly began to grow. We must, at any rate, think of these cells as being earmarked or tagged either by heredity or in some other way, for sudden growth from their very beginning. They are young and vigorous. In the beginning, however, they are all local. Later on they get out into the body and begin to grow at other places (metastases); when this happens, treatment is almost hopeless.

Irritation, as by an old fang of a tooth or a broken pipe stem, may start cells to grow.

Knowing these facts, we can understand what treatment is reasonable. When the growth is localized, surgery can remove it and the cells which are disposed to grow are taken away from the body. The cells, being young, if left alone, will overcome the more sluggish adult cells of the rest of the body. But, being young, they are sensitive to destruction by agents that will not hurt adult cells except in large doses.

The most reliable agent is the peculiar ray that is given off from radium or the X-ray machine. This ray is selective and kills cancer cells, leaving other cells alone.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The hot battle over the transfer of the Civil Aeronautics Authority isn't the only reorganization row on the president's hands.

It hasn't leaked out yet, but Roosevelt kicked up another in the navy department while Secretary Charles Edison was away at the Pacific naval games.

Edison was painfully surprised when he got back to his desk, because the reorganization involves a change he proposed himself but which FDR stymied. He is also grieved because hitherto he and Roosevelt always have seen eye-to-eye on all things naval.

The change involves the shifting of the armor division from the Ordnance Bureau to the Bureau of Construction and Repair. Edison advocated this to prevent any repetition of the construction scandals of last summer, when it was discovered that about thirty of the new destroyers were top-heavy and tended to roll over in the water.

What happened was that the Ordnance Bureau had specified a certain thickness of armour plate, which made the destroyers too heavy above the water line. The Bureau of Construction and Repair had charge of building the vessels, but it passed the buck back to the Ordnance Bureau for specifying such thick armour plate.

So all the admirals blamed everyone else, and the taxpayer was the goat. He had to pay for 60 tons of lead added to the keel of each destroyer.

* * *

"Defensive Armament."

TO PREVENT any more boners like this, Secretary Edison proposed making the armor division part of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, and asked Congressman Carl Vinson, chairman of the naval affairs committee, to incorporate this change in a naval reorganization bill.

But suddenly the Ordnance Bureau, jealous of losing any gold braid, stepped in. Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong, chief of ordnance, sold the committee on the view that armor was a "defensive armament" and as much a part of ordnance operations as the making of "offensive armanent," such a guns and shells. Offensive and defensive armaments are so closely inter-related, Furlong argued, that it would be impractical to separate them.

The shift was eliminated from the bill. Blocked in this direction, Edison resorted to direct action. He drafted an executive order placing armor under the Construction Bureau and sent it to the president. Believing there would be no hitch, he then departed for Pacific maneuvers.

But from past experience with the brass hats, Edison should have known better than to leave his pot unwatched. Soon as he got out of town they rushed to Congressman Vinson, who hurried to the White House and persuaded Roosevelt to pigeonhole the order.

What happens next, now that Edison is back, remains to be seen.

Political Chaff.

CONVERSATIONS have been taking place in Tulsa, Oklahoma, with H. L. Phillips, the oil man, for the purchase of the New York Yankees. If the deal goes through Jim Farley will be offered the presidency of the ball club. . . . Young Archie Roosevelt, who baited the Communists at the American Youth Congress, may become a reporter for the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review. . . . "Roosevelt Again," third term campaign booklet authored by Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, has run through two issues totaling 100,000 copies and the publishers have orders for another 50,000. . . . Since the Nazi invasion of Scandinavia, Wisconsin's ambitious GOP Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman has decided not to run against Governor "Julius-the-bust" Heil, but to try for the seat of Senator Bob LaFollette. Bob opposed the lifting of the arms embargo, and Zimmerman figures this will hurt him with the large Scandinavian population of Wisconsin.

* * *

Bachelor Frank Murphy.

WHEN he was attorney general, Frank Murphy was one of the most social bachelors in Washington. But since his elevation to the supreme court the handsome, bushy-browed Michigander is a changed man. He avoids the limelight; and the murmurs of wedding bells that used to tinkle in the society columns no longer are heard.

This is worrying some of his friends. And the other day Representative John Dingell of Michigan, father of three children, gave Murphy a fatherly lecture.

"Frank," he said, "you ought to be thinking seriously about marriage. You're 50 now and if you wait much longer it may be too late. I'd hate to see you grow old alone."

"You're right, John, and it may interest you to know that I have already taken a step in the direction of matrimony."

"Marvelous! I'm mighty glad to hear that. Have you popped the question yet?"

"No," smiled Murphy, "but I'm building a house."

* * *

"Glass-House" Bender.

LATEST addition to the Capitol Hill chapter of the "people-who-live-in-glass-houses" fraternity is wordy Representative George H. Bender of Ohio.

Not one of the more sprightly speakers in congress, Bender nevertheless prefaced a lengthy harangue against the TVA with a pontifical sermon about the "futility" of its champions.

"These individuals who defend the TVA," he droned, "have repeated the same speeches so often in this chamber that they empty the seats in record time whenever they launch into one of them."

Bender continued in this vein for some time, his eyes glued to the copy of his prepared speech. When he started to talk the house was well filled, but when a titter in the press gallery caused him to look up, he saw a wholly different sight.

In the chamber were exactly eleven members, eight on the Republican side and three on the Democratic. The rest had quietly made for the exits while he was berating his opponents about being dull and tiresome.

Our Village

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE LIKE our village. It is a typical sleepy-looking country town. The biggest businesses are the bank, the sawmill and the creamery. There is a grain elevator, an old flour mill beside the stream, a fire department and a postoffice. I suppose there must be a police force, too, though I have never seen it in evidence.

The people are friendly. There are several churches and nearly all of them have invited us to attend. The chamber of commerce has as broad a range of activities as any I ever knew. Descending into the village from the north, the motorist winds along the hill beside the stream and crosses the bridge and the railroad before he comes to the main street, lined with ancient business houses and lighted with neon signs. Behind these antique fronts, many of them unimposing, a surprising amount of very up-to-date business flourishes.

Early one day I tried to return a pair of tin shears I had borrowed from a tinner. The tinner was out, but the librarian, next door was in, and when she noticed my plight volunteered to return the snips for me. I had not known we had a library, yet there it was, as neat and inviting a place of books as can be found anywhere.

Everyone knows everyone else. They smile and say "Hello" along the street. The sidewalks are seldom full but always in use. Many times a day farmers drive into the town on various errands. A bandstand in the park hints at musical programs for the summer. A group of boys in bright blue sweaters does more than hint at a winning team of athletes.

The schoolhouse is a real community center. On every school day at morning and at evening the orange buses fetch and carry their loads of youngsters. Out over the hilly twisting roads they nose their way to the farthest farmhouse, tucked into a valley corner. Our own township has the greatest mileage of unimproved roads, and the wonder is that the buses can run at all. Yet our children have not missed a day of school because of roads or weather.

It's an old town that still carries some of the quiet unhurried charm of the slow-changing peaceful days of the pioneers. strangers smile at the warning to motorists, "Business District, SLOW", but if they will linger a little they'll find it a good place to live.

THEATERS

Durbin Film For Ohio.

Lovely Deanna Durbin whose singing future is assured by the fact that she already has been signed by the Metropolitan Opera company, is starred in "It's A Date," coming to the Ohio tomorrow. Another "lovely" in the film is Kay Francis, one of the screen's most beautiful brunets, who plays Deanna's mother. Walter Pidgeon and Lewis Howard are in the cast.

* * *

Love Story.

One of the most fascinating of all screen love stories has been remade, this time with Merle Oberon and George Brent. It is "'Til We Meet Again," which formerly was "One Way Passage" and gave Kay Francis and William Powell their most romantic roles. The action starts at the All Nations bar in Hong Kong and continues on an east bound ship from China. "An Angel From Texas" will be the second feature.

* * *

"Double Alibi."

A mystery story, with Wayne Morris, Margaret Lindsey and William Gargan opens at the Ritz today. Miss Lindsay and Gargan are newspaper reporters, while Morris has a triple role of detective, newspaper reporter and murder suspect. Johnny Mack Brown, Bob Baker and Fuzzy Knight are saddle partners who ride to the rescue in "Riders of Pasco Basin."

* * *

Cattlemen's Feud.

Cowboys come handsome in the movies and Bob Livingston and Duncan Renaldo live up to the standards in "Cowboys From Texas," at the Park theater. The feud between homesteaders and cattlemen of Texas after its arid acres were irrigated, is the theme of the film. "Three Sons" is a deeply moving human interest drama with Edward Ellis, Kent Taylor, William Gargan and Katherine Alexander.

* * *

Fantastic Quest.

Returning a sacred skull to an African tribe in order to stop savage uprising is the task which Lola Lane sets for herself in "Zanzibar" at the Majestic theater. Africa is the locale for this fantistic story. Also on the bill for the last two days of the week is Bill Elliott and Iris Meredith in "The Man From Tumbleweeds."

GIVE CONCERT

140-Piece All-County Music Group to Visit Bellville.

The 140-piece all-county high school band will play a concert at 3 p. m. Sunday on the lawn at the Bellville high school.

V. Douglas Thomas, director of the Bellville band, will be in charge of the concert and will conduct the band.

The concert will be the first of a series to be given this spring at four schools in the county.

Members of the band are from Madison township, Bellville, Plymouth, and Shiloh high schools.

Increased Lies Declared Check Upon Telepathy

CLEVELAND, O.—(U.P.)—The lie thwarted development of mental telepathy, believes Dr. Franz Polgar, famous Budapest psychologist.

"In the primitive state, I believe men generally were able to communicate by means of mental telepathy, supplemented, perhaps, by a few crude sounds," he said in a lecture.

"With the progress of civilization, sound was developed and finally became language. Then man discovered the possibility of lying, of saying the opposite of what he thought."

Dr Polgar said that with the development of the skill to lie, man's mental life split in two directions —the subconscious, which was the truth, and the conscious, which was what man wanted to believe and make others believe.

The Budapest psycholobist himself demonstrates telepathy.

"We all have some power of telepathy," he said "Women have what they call intuition and men their hunches"

88 PER CENT OF CENSUS JOB IN DISTRICT OVER

Director Says 58,523 Persons Contacted in Richland; Sees Decided Boost.

The 16th decennial census in the six-county 17th congressional district which includes Richland county is 88 per cent complete, Don Harper, district director at Mt. Vernon reported today.

Scheduled to end May 1, the government's nose-counting job has run behind schedule due to inclement weather which slowed up the census takers, Harper said.

With the district enumeration count for the six counties at 208,792, he predicted today that the urban count would be completed within another week. The rural section, he added, would not be finished for at least two weeks.

Progress of the enumeration in Richland county to date shows a total of 58,523 persons, and it is expected that when completed the count will show a decided increase over the 1930 census of 65,902 persons.

Harper said population figures for the cities had not yet been broken down. He said preliminary figures disclose that Mansfield's population has increased considerably in the past 10 years. A report on this will be available within a few days after the count is completed, he said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Harry Foltz, one of the government's enumerators, was at the reformatory here today.

Harper said Mrs. Foltz was copying information on the 2,900 prisoners at the reformatory and the institution's two honor camps. The entire job will take about two weeks.

CHAPTER XXXIII

Too late! At 1 o'clock she and Melvyn would stand before the minister and be made man and wife. A cold chill suddenly displaced the warmth of her body and she felt her heart sink like lead in her chest. Yes, she was going to marry Melvyn. She had promised to do so, and Melvyn would be hurt, terribly, terribly hurt if she failed to keep her word.

"The hero has arrived!" Betty said excitedly, bursting into the room. Her eyes were merry as she glanced at Jane. "You'd better go over to his room and cheer him up. He looks as though he's going to collapse any minute now."

Jane giggled as she left the room. "That's Mel for you. He can operate and do anything else without feeling the least bit nervous, but as soon as it comes to a girl—you'd better see that Elaine finishes dressing."

Silence like a heavy pall lay upon the room as she walked out, closing the door behind her. For once even Betty was still and Elaine, too engrossed in her thoughts to talk, was suddenly glad that Jane had left the room. It had been difficult to keep up the pretense of being in love with Melvyn. Jane was shrewd and it wouldn't have been long before she penetrated her mask.

* * *

"You're a fool, you know," Betty said softly, perching on the end of Elaine's bed. "You're letting a little quarrel ruin your entire life. Elaine, why don't you tell Melvyn that you can't marry him?"

Elaine forced a gay smile to her lips as she placed her remaining clothes in the suitcase. She snapped it shut with a decisive click and turned to Betty. "Because——because I happen to love him."

"Bosh!" Betty snorted. "My dear little cherub, do I have to remind you that I've lived four years with you and that I can read you as easily as I read a book? You mustn't ever tell lies, Elaine. Every time you do you begin to blush like the very dickens. You don't love Melvyn and you're going to marry him simply to spite Eric. And I think you're a fool if you do."

"Are you finished?" Elaine asked cooly, hesitating before the door. "Because if you are I have to go. Melvyn probably will be waiting."

"You talk like a schoolgirl," Betty said with a reproving glance. She jumped to her feet. "But—if that is the way you feel about it, well, go ahead and marry the man. It's your own funeral."

* * *

Jack and Clara were still happily engaged in their argument as Elaine swept into the room. Sighing, she sat down on the couch and glanced at the little clock on the mantlepiece. Quarter to one. Fifteen minutes more and she and Melvyn would be made husband and wife. She was suddenly glad that there was so little time left. It would be better to leave without seeing Eric. She was going to marry Melvyn, that was final, and Eric's arrival would only have the effect of upsetting them all.

"Shure, an' I pity the lad!" Jack exclaimed with a grin at Elaine. "It is no easy thing for a man to be givin' up his independence. For the rest of his life now Melvyn will be havin' to take orders from a woman. 'Tis a sad state of affairs."

Elaine didn't tell him that he too was going to give up his independence that very afternoon. Before she could even think of this crushing retort a knock sounded on the door. Silence dropped an electric tension over the room as Elaine rose from the couch and walked towards the door. The muscles in her stomach became tight and she wished that her legs would stop wobbling so. Her heart was pounding a mad tempo within her as she placed her hand on the knob and threw wide the door.

He was there. Handsome, eager, black, curly hair dishevelled, suit wrinkled, he stood quietly before her, eyes pleading, lips curved into a nervous smile.

'Hello, Elaine," he said softly. "May—may I come in?"

Elaine smiled and withdrew from the door. "Of course, Eric!"

"Well, you're just in time," Betty declared with a relieved sigh as they entered the apartment. She glanced at Clara, a triumphant gleam in her eyes, "I told you he would come once he found out how important it was."

Eric smiled easily and walked over to Betty, holding out his hand. "Thanks a lot," he said gratefully. "I won't ever forget how much you did for me."

Clara sniffed, apparently determined to prevent Betty from getting a swelled head. "Some day she'll stick her face into some one else's business once too often." She stood up and tugged at Jack's arm. "Well, we aren't wanted around here, children. Let's scram before they throw us out."

* * *

Elaine fidgeted nervously on the couch as the three of them marched solemnly out of the room. It wasn't until the door had been firmly closed behind them that she turned to look up at Eric. The fire in his eyes sent delicious shudders up and down her spine and she immediately turned her eyes away again. She had no right to his love any more. She had no right to feel anything for him, she was going to marry Melvyn.

Eric walked slowly towards her and sat down on the couch. Before she had the presence of mind to move away he had placed one arm gently around her shoulders. His voice was husky and deep when he spoke.

"Elaine—I—I was told that you were going to marry Stuart. I suppose I shouldn't have come back. But well—I had too. Do you mind?"

Elaine shook her head as she slipped out from beneath his arm. "Of course I don't mind, Eric," she told him with a forced smile. "You're one of my best friends and—and one should always have one's friends about at a time like this."

Her remark had hurt him. Impulsively she laid a cool hand on his as his face twisted into a frown. And yet—what else could she do? If she acted nervous or showed how much she loved him, she would simply be encouraging him to continue his useless quest. The quicker he found out that she had no intention of breaking her engagement to Melvyn the sooner he would forget about her and return to California and his mother.

"I thought I was something more than a friend," he whispered softly. "I—I thought that you and I were engaged to be married."

"Were is correct. Eric, but—well, when you left for California that was ended. I'm going to marry Melvyn now, and you—" her eyes burned into his—"you can go back to your mother."

His eyes grew puzzled and he rose to his feet to pace restlessly up and down the room. "You shouldn't be so cruel, Elaine. It doesn't become you."

His remark stung her to the quick. Gone, suddenly, was her resolve to remain cool. Into her mind swept the memory of all the anger and hurt his departure for California had caused her and she glanced fiercely up at him.

"It doesn't become a man to be a quitter Eric," she told him flatly. "It doesn't become a man to act like a fool, either. You proved you were a quitter by giving up your job and returning home to your mother. And you've proved yourself a fool by coming here today! What do you want me to do? Do you expect me to throw my arms around you now that you've decided to come back? Well, if you did expect that you're going to be disappointed. I loved you once, yes, but that love ended the day you left me. It ended the day you proved you couldn't take the punishment and hardships of every day life. Go back to your mother and your fortune, Eric. Go on back to your mother and leave me alone!"

There were tears in her eyes as she angrily rose from the couch and walked over to the door. She rubbed her hand impatiently across her eyes. She was a fool. She must stop crying. She mustn't let Eric know how badly she felt.

* * *

His face was drawn and pale and his eyes held a peculiar gleam as he went to her side, raised her head and looked down at her tear-stained cheeks.

"My mother is dead, Elaine. The day I left New York I received a telegram which said my mother was desperately ill. I returned to California because I wanted to see her at least once more. I didn't quit my job because it was difficult, and I didn't leave just because of that little scrape we had. I left because—Elaine, I loved my mother."

An embarrassed flush suffused Elaine's cheeks as he stumbled through his explanation. Impulsively she raised her arms and threw them around his neck. "Eric—I'm sorry. I was just angry for a minute that I didn't stop to think you might have a real reason for having left me."

"It's all right," he forgave her with a tear-dimmed smile, dabbing at her eyes with his big, white handkerchief. "The only thing we've got to talk about is your marriage to Stuart. Elaine, are you really going through with it?"

She averted her eyes and nodded her head. "I have to Eric. I promised Melvyn I would and I can't let him down now. I'm marrying him this afternoon and tomorrow we'll be on our way to China."

"China!" Eric's eyes were startled and his fingers gripped her shoulders until she ached all over. "But—are you insane, Elaine? Is he insane? China is no place for a girl nowadays. You can't go! I won't let you make such a fool of yourself."

His fiercely spoken words thrilled her to the core of her being and she smiled as she again sat down upon the couch.

* * *

Somehow, Eric had changed. His mother's death had, in some strange way, caused him to grow up. Gone now was the nervousness, the air of uncertainty which had once so annoyed her. Before her stood a man who loved her very much, a man who was confident of himself and quietly determined to recapture her love. But—but that man had come too late!

"You can't stop me," she told him quietly, desperately trying to control her trembling nerves. "Don't you see, Eric, Melvyn loves me. Soon he'll be in China, running a thousand risks a day, taking chances every minute with his life. I couldn't send him to face that hurt, moody and angry. He—why he might even be killed. I couldn't ever look at anybody's face if I let him die unhappy."

"What about us, Elaine?" Eric said gently as he took a seat beside her. "Are we to ruin our lives simply to make sure that one man dies happy? That sounds rather hard, I know, but Elaine, you could die too, so could I; every one dies sooner or later. Selfish though it may sound, our first duty is to ourselves. We have a right to be happy, and absolutely no right to deliberately ruin our lives."

Elaine glanced down at her watch and frowned. It was one o'clock. She fidgeted restlessly on the couch and took one final look at Eric's serious face before she rose and walked towards the door.

COURT RECEIPTS REACH $1,990

Fines and Costs Decline $100 During Month in Both Civil and Criminal Cases.

Municipal court receipts totaling $1,990.70 for April dropped nearly $100 under the revenue for March, the monthly report of collections prepared by Miss Isabel Gertsmeyer, deputy clerk, showed today. March receipts totaled $2,088.

Part of the decrease was attributed to a drop in revenues in fines and costs, although a noticeable decrease was also shown in the civil branch.

From the total receipts, the city's general fund will be increased by $1,394 while $596 will be distributed to the state and the county.

The city's share was derived from fines and costs in criminal cases and $320 from costs in civil actions.

Fines and costs collected in city criminal cases totaled $263; traffic forfeitures, $437; city's share of state highway patrol cases, $149; forfeitures in criminal cases, $45; and costs payable to the city from state cases, $177.

MRS. McCUTCHAN NEW ASSOCIATION HEAD

Elected Yesterday at Annual Meeting Held In Church Parlors; Others Named to New Posts; Rev. Peter Young Speaks.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church a 1 o'clock luncheon was served to 50 after which officers were elected. Mrs. H. C. McCutchan was elected to the presidency.

She will be assisted by Mrs. R. F. Steinebrey, vice president; Mrs. George Moore, chairman of the ways and means committee; Mrs. Ethel Channell, chairman of the activity committee; Mrs. F. N. Bennett, chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. H. T. Seneff, chairman of the program committee. Mrs. R. D. Lindsay, secretary; Mrs. R. E. Hutchison, treasurer; Mrs. R. G. Averill, budget chairman, and Mrs. O. L. Kiplinger, chairman of literature, continue in their posts for another year.

Mrs. Kiplinger read a memorial service for deceased members. They were Mrs. Herbert Stone, Miss Caroline Lampert, Mrs. Grace Kennedy, Miss Eleanor Upson, Mrs. Rex Gilbert, Mrs. Frank Black and Mrs. Roy Colwell.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. E. C. Flory, Mrs. P. B. Dietrichson, Mrs. Arthur Cline, Mrs. Charles Workman, Mrs. Paul Cropper, Mrs. W. B. Abrams, Mrs. H. H. Sanford and Mrs. Scott Coffin.

"New Missionary Frontiers" was the topic of the talk presented by Rev. Peter Young, church pastor. "The first task of missions," he said quoting from a book entitled Re-Thinking Missions, "is the creation of a new kind of person, at the center of society; that the main contribution, of the Christian missionary in backward lands, is not the devising of social and educational programs, but the development of native men possessing the spirit of Christ, who will be able to devise their own programs.

"The prime motive today in missionary endeavor is suggested by the word sharing. It takes broad-minded, liberal men and women to carry on missionary work in the spirit of sharing.

"About 10 cents, of every dollar given to the Mansfield church goes to help support the missionary work which the Congregational churches are doing."

Activities of the organization will be resumed in October, while June 6 has been set as the date of the Pilgrim guild picnic.

PLAN SESSION.

Members of the Junior Activities unit will meet tomorrow at the Legion home at 2:30 p. m.

Pledge Eight Girls To Social Group at Marjorie Boals'

A group of eight girls were pledged to Delta Sigma Zeta in a candlelight service held last night at the home of Miss Marjorie Boals, Highland avenue. Miss Patty Palmer, president, and Miss Anita Smith, pledgemistress, were in charge.

Those pledged were the Misses Marilyn Ackerman, Sally Dirlam, Marian Hoff, Doris McKnight, Joan Porter, Marilee Sword, Rose Swoyer, and Adeline Wilging.

Kathleen Preston announced that the girls would entertain with a Mother's day breakfast, May 12, at the Susie Janis home with the Misses Patty Oberlander, Ethel Bogan, and Marjorie Scott in charge of arrangements. The Misses Marilou Sowash, Theresa Sprosty, and Maxine Bush are in charge of invitations.

Members will meet again May 15 with Miss Dorothy Bergman, Rowland avenue, hostess, and Miss Barbara Chatlain assisting.

Routine Session Held By First Church Units

Members of both the Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the First Methodist church met yesterday afternoon with their respective presidents, Mrs. R. W. James and Mrs. Anna Rice in charge of the business sessions at the church. Mrs. Asa Planck led the devotions, and Maxine Hartman spoke on the young people's work.

Ruth Leighley Duckwald sang "We Thank Thee" and "The Prayer Perfect." Mrs. James reviewed the fifth chapter of the study book. Her topic was "The Cost of Home Missions." Mrs. C. A. Crawford was the supper hostess. The next meeting will be held June 6

Mrs. Anson Speaks At Victory Party Of Prospect Club

Members of the Prospect Mothers' club gathered at the Prospect park pavillon for a victory dinner yesterday evening, with members of the losing team, under the direction of Mrs. John Klinger, entertaining the winning team, headed by Mrs. W. F. Shupp.

There were 48 persons in attendance, and Mrs. D. M. Caston served as the toastmistress. Mrs. George Anson, guest speaker for the evening, told of her recent visits to gardens in Louisiana, Texas and old Mexico. Paul Tappan then showed moving pictures to illustrate this trip.

Group singing, games and contests followed, with prizes going to Mrs. Hugh Scott and Mrs. Fred Griesbaugh. Election of officers will be held at the next regular meeting, May 9, in the school annex. Mrs. Gilbert Laser will have charge of the program, and Mrs. C. C. Rowe will be chairman of the hostesses at that time.

Mrs. Packham Hostess To U. P. Church Class

Mrs. Harry Packham, Lexington avenue, opened her home to members of the Findley-Anderson Bible class of the United Presbyterian church Wednesday. Mrs. R. F. Miller and Mrs. Stewart assisted with the entertaining of the 26 members and two guests, Mrs. Inez Quinley and Miss Ella Hoffman.

Devotions were led by Mrs. W. W. Webb, and Mrs. George Riel presided during the business meeting. Contests followed, and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. William Durschel, Helen avenue, June 5. Mrs. Lucy Barnett and Mrs. Stanley Hout will be the associate hostesses.

* * *

HAVE SESSION.

There were 11 members and two guests of the Koogle Community club present for a meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. Homer Miller on the Wooster road. Mrs. Raymond Snyder was the associate hostess. Contests followed the business, with prizes going to Mrs. Donald Hout, Mrs. Harry Calhoun, Mrs. Clifford Albright, Mrs. Ray Hout and Mrs. Clayton Cole. The next meeting, June 6, will be at the home of Mrs. Carlton Smith in Mifflin township.

* * *

HONORED.

Mrs. Mary Oblinger entertained with a party for her daughter, Nancy Lou, yesterday in honor of her tenth birthday. The affair was held at the family home, 18 Quincey avenue, at 4 o'clock, with 11 friends of the honoree in attendance. Games and contests were the diversion, and pastel-tinted flowers, ribbons and tapers decorated the long table, when luncheon was served. The guests presented Nancy Lou with many gifts in honor of the occasion.

* * *

ELECT OFFICERS.

Mrs. Alice Colby was elected president of the Ladies' Missionary society of the Evangelical Congregational church yesterday afternoon during a meeting at the home of Mrs. D. E. Stuckey, 404 Ohio street. The hostess was named secretary, and Mrs. Cuba Stenstrom, treasurer. Mrs. Colby was chosen as a delegate to the Sunday school convention at Findlay in June, with Mrs. Stuckey as the alternate. The place of the June 13 meeting will be announced later.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

WHEN the calendar indicates that the month of May is under way, folks can feel pretty sure that warm and warmer days will be forthcoming—that is usually they can—but this year is evidently the exception to the rule, for the days seem only to be getting colder—with rain and even snow yesterday and today! So undoubtedly our residents who have returned from warmer climes count themselves rather unfortunate, while those embarking now for sunny locales feel most lucky. . . . Mrs. Mary K. Carter arrived from Phoenix, Ariz., this week—she's been there since the late fall, and will spend the summer here at the Women's Club.

Marianne

* * *

Her friends will be happy to learn that Mrs. Gilbert D. Schneider is feeling better after her too-long siege with pneumonia and pleurisy. . . . She left this morning for Carlsbad, N. M., to visit with her sister, Mrs. C. E. Walker. . . . Taking her young son, Lynn, with her, Mrs. Schneider has gone to the southwestern city to strengthen her health and will remain for several months.

* * *

Have you seen the lovely engagement ring Mabel Hahne is wearing these days? It's a gift from Roy A. Griffin, and the wedding date has been set for June 29, when the ceremony will be solemnized at the home of Mabel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hahne, 605 Scholl road. . . . Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Griffin of McConnesville, is employed here—and he's the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Nutter of this vicinity.

* * *

KAY GLESSNER and Mrs. Walter Zeigler had a pleasant trip recently when they went to visit the latter's son, John, in Gettysburg, Pa. . . . As you probably recall, John transferred to Gettysburg college from Wittenberg this year, and so Kay was his guest at the formal Ivy Ball and the Pan-Hellenic dance. . . . Kay and Mrs. Zeigler also visited in York, Pa., and while in Gettysburg, they stayed with John's aunt, Mrs. Ed Pfeffer.

* * *

I'd be willing to wager most anything that Mrs. A. L. Dirham finds this sort of Ohio weather quite an unpleasant change from the warm sunshine of California. . . . She arrived in town this week from her home in Santa Barbara for an extended visit with relatives. . . . Perhaps you remember Mrs. Dirham better as Hattie May, a former Mansfield resident. . . . She's staying here with her sister, Mrs. Fred Kindinger.

* * *

UNDOUBTEDLY many of you know Jayne Hills of Carleton, as she's been coming to Mansfield for more than a year to take flute lessons from Charlet Cellars. . . . And now she has won first place in class C of the Ohio Education association state finals for her ability as a flutist. . . . Consequently she is eligible for the national finals to be held at Grand Rapids, Mich., in mid-May.

* * *

We can be right proud of Margaret Twitchell and George Biddle, who attend the Cleveland School of Art. . . . Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, is a senior there this year, and she has an oil portrait hanging in the 22nd annual May show of the Cleveland Museum of Art. . . . George, whose parents are Atty. and Mrs. G. W. Biddle, is displaying two large water colors in this show. . . . He is a junior at the school now.

* * *

TWO Mansfield students in the law school at Western Reserve university, Cleveland, were initiated into Delta Theta Phi, legal fraternity, recently. . . . They are Richard D. Armold and Don C. Smith. . . . The formal services and banquet were held at the Tudor Arms hotel near the university. . . . Dr. J. H. Nichols is in Baltimore, Md., for a ten-days stay.

All Presbyterian Circles Hold May Meetings, Have Socials

ALL of the circles of the First Presbyterian church had regular meetings and programs yesterday afternoon. There were 18 members and three guests of Circle One present in the parlors when Mrs. J. F. Morey and Mrs. Jacob Kramer entertained. The devotions were led by Mrs. Lucy Williams, and Miss Carol Cockerel gave a character sketch of Ruth, a Biblical character.

Tea was served at the close of the afternoon with Mrs. Walter Goodenough pouring. Mrs. H. M. Kroegher, 372 Ruth avenue, will entertain June 6 with Mrs. Harry Buchan assisting.

* * *

A buffet luncheon was served to members of Circle Two when Mrs. John Leistensnider, 87 Greenwood avenue, entertained. Mrs. Jerome King poured. The group sewed during the afternoon, and Mrs. George Ingram, Augustine avenue, invited the group to her home June 6.

* * *

Mrs. E. M. Eichen, Mrs. C. V. Baker and Mrs. E. D. Flinn were hostesses to Circle Three in the church parlors. Devotions were read by Mrs. Baker, and refreshments were served during the social hour. Mrs. Edwin Balyeat, jr., has invited the group to her home, 32 Rowland avenue, for the meeting of June 6, when her associates will be Mrs. Edwin Balyeat, sr., and Mrs. F. F. Dillon.

* * *

Mrs. James Bailey, 296 West Fourth street, assisted by Mrs. Sam Caldwell and Mrs. Earl Ports entertained Circle Four when Mrs. E. S. Malone gave a brief talk on the circle aims for the coming year, and read "A New Day," a poem. Mrs. R. E. McCombs led the devotions including "A Handful of Clay" by Van Dyke, and a prayer by Eddie Guest.

There were 18 present, and refreshments were served. Mrs. D. N. Roller was a guest. The next meeting will be June 6 with Mrs. C. G. Young, 239 Bartley avenue, with Mrs. Earl Gilbert and Mrs. Barney Banks as associates.

* * *

The home of Mrs. D. O. Meese, 591 Woodland road, was opened to members of Circle Five, with Mrs. Fred Elder and Miss Florence Sloane assisting. Mrs. Meese conducted the meeting, and Mrs. Richard Olin led the devotions. Members sewed for the Service League after which refreshments were served with Mrs. B. J. Ballitt pouring. Mrs. C. C. Collins, 210 Mapledale avenue, will entertain June 6.

Miss Opal Lindegger entertained members of the Friendly Eight club last night at the home of Mrs. A. L. Fisher, 474 West Third street, when two tables of bridge were in play. The winners were Mrs. Lester Raby, Mrs. Herman Wentz, and Mrs. Henry Stauffer.

A guest of the club, Mrs. Fred Roth, also won a prize. Luncheon was served at the small tables. Mrs. Robert Cook, Howard street, will be the next hostess, but no date was set for the meeting.

* * *

A white elephant sale was a feature of the meeting of the Learn-a-Stitch club which was held yesterday with Mrs. E. H. Thomas, Newman street. Following the business meeting a contest was conducted, and a prize was won by Mrs. Adam Smith. Green and white oppointments were used on the refreshment table. Mrs. Clyde Butler, Bulkley avenue, will entertain May 16.

* * *

Members of the Italian Social club enjoyed a kid party and amateur show at the home of Mrs. Joseph Stancato, Grandview avenue, last night. Miss Ann Digregoria and Mrs. James Villella won the prizes. Luncheon was served at a long table at the close of the evening with a cake decorating the center.

The cake was in honor of Mrs. James Fillipelli, and Miss Violet Digregoria who were celebrating their birthdays. Mrs. Villella will entertain the club May 16.

Quiet Ceremony Read for Couple

Miss Lydia L. Bandi, 97 West Second street, became the bride of Philip Maglott, 26 State street, yesterday at 4 o'clock in a pretty candlelight ceremony before the altar of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church. Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of the church, performed the single ring service.

The bride was attired in a blue street-length costume with matching and yellow accessories. The couple was unattended. Immediately after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Maglott left for a short motor trip. Upon their return to Mansfield they will reside at 66 Harter avenue.

Mr. Maglott, who attended the Mansfield public schools, is affiliated with the Texaco company. Mrs. Maglott has been employed in the office of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

ROUTINE SESSIONS HELD BY SOCIETIES

Home and Foreign Missionary Organizations; Aid of Central Methodist Church Have May Meeting, Luncheon.

SESSIONS of the missionary groups of the Central Methodist church were opened yesterday morning when Mrs. L. F. Rondel conducted the Home meeting with Mrs. D. W. Cummins leading the devotions. Mrs. R. E. Winters served as news commentator, and items from the annual report were read by Mrs. John Roman.

Mrs. L. M. Daugherty conducted the mite box opening service, after which Mrs. E. C. Jenkins conducted the session of the Foreign society. Echoes of the group meetings held at the Franklin church last week were given by Mrs. Ruth Orcutt, Mrs. Charles Birch and Mrs. H. W. Peterson.

Mrs. Louis Rahn reported on the Young People's rally, and the devotions were led by Miss Virginia Jenkins. Conference news was given by Mrs. Peterson, after which Mrs. R. L. Foulke spoke on "Temperance."

A group of mother songs was sung by Mrs. Claude Ewing, and the Mothersingers of West Fifth school, directed by Mrs. H. D. Bishop, sang three numbers. Their selections were "God So Loved the World," "Were You There," and "Prayer Perfect."

The Aid society was then in session with Mrs. C. N. Shultz in charge. Devotions were read by Mrs. Howard Handel. The trio including Mrs. John Stout, Mrs. L. H. Ogborn, and Mrs. Birch, accompanied by Mrs. Rahn, sang "Steal Away." Plans were made during the business meeting to hold a rummage sale next Thursday and Friday at 13 East Sixth street. Mrs. E. C. Frankeberger was the hostess for the noon luncheon. The next meeting will be held June 6.

INVITE TEACHERS.

All public teachers in this vicinity have been invited to attend the tea of the Northcentral Ohio Music Teachers' association which will be held from 3 to 5 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday, Miss Florence MacDonald, chairman, announced today. Mrs. Margaret McNeil, Dayton, state president, will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Constance Heads School Club

Mrs. Harry Constance and Mrs. Bessie Erickson were re-elected president and secretary, respectively, of the Bowman Mothers' club Wednesday afternoon, when that organization had its final meeting of the year. Other officers named during the session at the school were: Mrs. Anna Butts, vice president; Mrs. Emmett Izer, assistant secretary, and Mrs. Don Hartwig, treasurer.

Mrs. William Rand was welcomed as a new member, at this meeting, which was attended by 49 members. Carl Stough and Mrs. Harry Downs were the guest speakers. The group is planning to have a lawn fete at the school on May 31, with Mrs. LeRoy Stroble in charge. It was announced Wednesday that the Redbird team had won the membership contest, and so the members will be entertained by the Bluebird team with a dinner in the near future.

Fairy Tale Romance Can Happen

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One of my girl correspondents, who has the nice name of Janet, writes me about her first and only love affair, which goodness knows is romantic enough in this hard-boiled age.

Janet had taken up a course in first-aid with the Red Cross, and succeeded so well she had been admitted as probationer in the best hospital in town. Now, don't let your imagination rush ahead and think she'd fallen in love with an interne or he with her. The story is nothing like that at all.

On her evening off, she was having supper with her mother when she heard a tremendous crash at the corner. Without waiting to put on her hat and coat she rushed toward the scene of the accident. Part of a building under construction had fallen in. Reports said that people were beneath the pile of bricks.

Janet began squirming through the crowd to help. She was that kind of a girl, she wanted to be of use. But the police holding the crowd back, wouldn't listen to her explanation or her plea that she had had hospital training. She was pretty roughly handled, it seems.

On the scene, there happened to come a young man—all he should be in the way of appearance, manners and willingness—to stand up for a girl in a tight place. She explained to him that she was a pupil nurse, that she knew something of first-aid, and that that had been her only desire to get into the melee.

"Officer, I'll be responsible for this young lady," the stranger said, and gave the policeman his card, a glance at which made him loosen his none-too-gentle grip on Janet's arm.

The young man then explained that falling bricks, police and a mob was really no place for a girl at that stage of the accident. An ambulance with internes would be there presently, also the police patrol. And the best thing for the disheveled young woman to do was to go home, and if she were willing, he would be glad to escort her.

When a distinctly mussed-up daughter appeared in charge of a strange young man, who gave his name, his residence, and then prepared to leave, Janet's mother suggested that he stay and tell her about it.

But life had begun not only for Janet, but for the young man whom we'll call John, although it isn't his name. The immemorial torch had touched their lives and love had made its appearance.

There really isn't much more to add. John proved to be a gentleman, well situated, who had known plenty of girls in his twenty-nine years. But something about Janet, as she dashed up to help, appealed to him as nothing else had appealed in all the other girls he had ever met.

They are to be married in June, and the prospects are that they'll "live happily ever after."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Did Harry get back?" she repeated my question. "He's back with bells on. He has enough costumes and makeup to fit out a whole play, and he says the two chaps he brought back as doubles for Mary and Noel are fit as any fiddle that ever was fiddled, and are rarin' to go. I'd like to see Jack Leslie's face if your father decides to use them."

"What do you think?" I said, as I climbed out of my own bed, and donned bathrobe and slippers in readiness for my morning shower. "Will Father decide to use them?"

"What your father will or will not do is on the laps of the well-known gods," Lillian said sententiously. "This discovery of the secret entrance to the house has changed the problem all around. That much I know, but how much it is changed, or what his plans are now, I know as little as anyone else. I doubt if he knows himself."

She reached for her own bathrobe and wrinkled her nose at me.

"I doubt is anyone save Katharine is up now, and she showers at 5 a. m. or some such unholy hour. You take one bathroom and I'll take the other. But, before we start, let's give Katie our breakfast order. Wouldn't you like it served up here? You have a brute of a day ahead of you, you know, and you ought to save yourself all unnecessary motions."

"I think that's a splendid idea," I said. "I'll just have my usual breakfast—grapefruit juice, soft-boiled eggs in the shell, coffee, no toast."

"I'll just double that order, only adding a sweet roll for my coffee," she said, and as I went out of the room to the bathroom, I heard her giving our orders to Katie over the house telephone.

I bathed, dressed and breakfasted with delightful, luxurious leisure, and when we had finished, I looked at my watch.

"I suppose I would better call Mary," I said with distinct reluctance in my voice.

"I know how you feel," Lillian said. "It's a shame to waken her to face the ordeal she's scheduled for today. But 'the moving finger writes' and all the rest of it, so you would better get busy. Shall I go down and see that the library is in readiness for the rehearsal? Everything unnecessary in small articles should be carted off to your study, I suppose."

"Yes, that will be best." I said absently, for all my faculties were focused on the unpleasant task before me.

I found myself actually trembling as I made my way down the hall to the room where I hoped Mary was sleeping soundly. I knew that she had the resilience of youth, and that her temperament was volatile, enabling her to throw off troubles which would daunt a more literal person. But this coming first rehearsal of my play with the cast, and the fear that her father-in-law meant to take the leading role away from her on the score of incompetence, was enough to give the "jitters" to the most casual-minded person.

Even the surprise we had planned for Philip Veritzen seemed to have lost its glamor now that the test was so near. I hoped that Mary did not share my drab feelings, and was infinitely relieved when at my light rap her voice caroled clearly: "Auntie Madge, is that you? Come in. We're halfway decent, just drawing lots to see who'll shower first. Noel tried to be gallant and give me first choice, but I insisted upon being a sport. You're just in time to hold the straws."

"I think you'd better accept Noel's gallantry," I told her. "I want you to get dressed for the rehearsal as soon as possible, then have your breakfast. By that time it will be almost time for your father-in-law and the cast to arrive."

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, May 4.

AFFAIRS move along into successful grooves on this day, according to the ruling influences. While there will be heightened initiative, with many bright ideas and a tendency to do things by fresh and perhaps audacious methods, industry, application and common sense will not be lacking. Employers and superiors will be quick to co-operate with such enterprise and afford adequate returns. Push toward this end, and don't fear new suggestions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a promising year, when initiative, enterprise, new plans and fresh ways of doing things will be appreciated by employers and superiors. Approach these with bold and original ways of bettering old processes or remedying static situations. Enduring rewards are in store for novelty and innovation.

A child born on this day, while having much enterprise, aggressive efforts at handling new ways and means of geting things done, may also be industrious, ambitious, dependable and trustworthy.

Parents Have Some Rights

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

MOTHER had counted on that half-cake for dinner, but just when dinner was about ready she discovered that nearly all the cake had disappeared. Jean and her schoolmates had eaten it early in the afternoon.

Just 10 minutes before lunch on Saturday, her 20-year-old daughter arrived with an unexpected luncheon guest.

At 8 o'clock one evening Bill remembered he had to have a costume made for the play to be put on by his class for the PTA next day. He expected his mother to make it.

Next evening, at dinner, Hubert announced, "I must have the car tonight." Mother replied, "Dad and I had planned to use the car and take in a show." "But, Mother, I have a date!"

In every one of these situations argument would, at the time, do no good. The damage had been done. If the mother were wise, she met the problems silently, calmly, patiently, and made the most of them.

But something had happened during the earlier weeks, months and years. Jean had eaten things meant for dessert before without taking the trouble first to find out if she should. It hardly had occurred to that 20-year-old daughter that she was doing anything irregular or inconsiderate in bringing home to lunch an unexpected guest. Bill had called upon his mother many a time before, no doubt, and with no more warning, to do things for him "right away." Hubert, too, was only running true to form.

Following each of the foregoing incidents, the mother's rights could have been laid before the offending youth objectively, when all concerned were calm and reasonable. Even then the youth might have been entirely blind to the mother's rights or unwilling to look squarely at them. Practiced so long in gratifying his own wishes first, he might not be inclined to choose self-sacrifice, even in the light of reason.

Let parents of the much younger child, especially of the baby, begin now to train him so he won't act as these children.

Guided well, the child learns early in his school years to find out beforehand what he and his pals may or may not eat, whether the food in the pantry or refrigerator is available for them or reserved for later use. Guided well, the child learns that although he should often bring his friends into the home for a meal, he should invite these friends only after he has made arrangements at home. Guided well, the child who needs the help of his mother for making costumes and the like for school will let her know about his needs as early as possible. And as for the family car, the youth who in childhood had learned self-denials and consideration for his parents, will first learn if the family car is available for him before he makes the date. Guided well, he will have learned that in the use of the car his parents have the first place.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

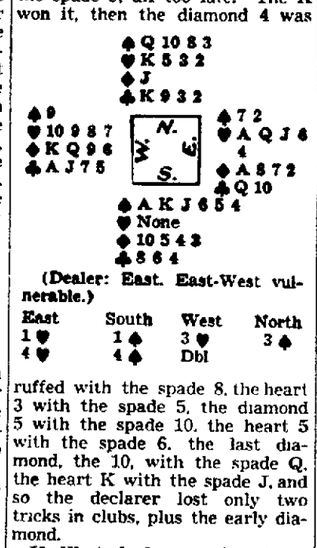
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN TO LEAD TRUMPS

Whenever you can be reasonably sure the declarer will have to do a lot of ruffing with his trumps or those in the faced hand, your job is to lead trumps and make him use two of them on a trick instead of one. If it is clear that your side has nearly all of the strength in three suits, you can easily enough deduce that your foe is depending on his distribution, with a blank or singleton in one hand opposite length in the other.

West led his heart 10, and the beans were spilled at the outset. Declarer ruffed, led a diamond to West's Q, and the latter returned the spade 9, all too late. The K won it, then the diamond 4 was ruffed with the spade 8, the heart 3 with the spade 5, the diamond 5 with the spade 10, the heart 5 with the spade 6, the last diamond, the 10, with the spade Q, the heart K with the spade J, and so the declarer lost only two tricks in clubs, plus the early diamond.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

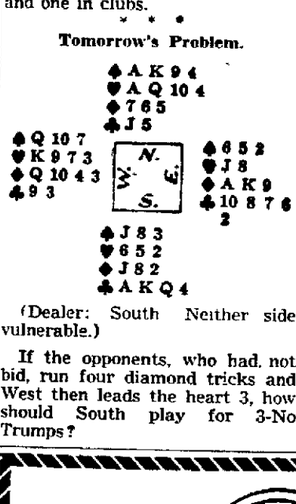
East	South	West	North
1 ♥	1 ♠	3 ♥	3 ♠
4 ♥	4 ♠	Dbl

If West had started with a spade, and East upon winning the diamond lead had offered a second spade, South would have had only two trumps left in the dummy for ruffing diamonds. He therefore would have had to lose two tricks in that suit. These, plus the two losers in clubs, would have beaten him.

The hand was a particularly sad one for East and West, since the post-mortem developed that they could have made 5-Hearts, losing only one trick in spades and one in clubs.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South Neither side vulnerable.)

If the opponents, who had not bid, run four diamond tricks and West then leads the heart 3, how should South play for 3-No Trumps?

Social Clubs Activities of

Dinner at 6:30 o'clock was an event of Wednesday evening for members of the Mater club at the Schwarz Tavern on the Lexington avenue road. The group played 500 during the evening, and prizes were won by Mrs. Peter Stupanski, Mrs. Jerome Dillon, and Mrs. George Costello. Mrs. Roy Douville will have the next meeting, May 15, at her home on Vennum avenue.

Pinochle was the diversion last evening at a meeting of the Revelers club at the home of Mrs. Philip Wentz, 118 Spring street. Mrs. Robert Dinger and Mrs. Clifford Cater won the high score prizes. Red and White appointments decorated the table when refreshments were served. Mrs. Cater will entertain the group on May 16.

* * *

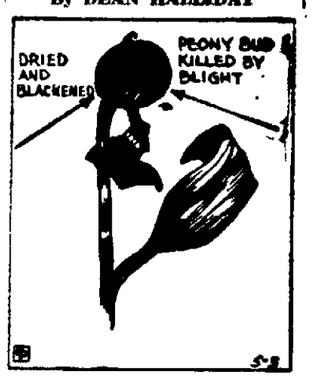
Sewing and a social time were the entertainment for members of the Pal club when Mrs. Harold Dowds, South Main road, entertained yesterday. Refreshments were served by the hostess, and the group was invited to the home of Mrs. Lucille Griffith, South Main road, for a meeting May 16.

* * *

Mrs. T. M. Case was hostess for a meeting of the Talphi Bridge club yesterday evening at her home on South Main street. The diversion was in play at two tables, and prizes were won by Mrs. Charles Benny and Mrs. E. F. Bilfing. The next regular meeting will be with Mrs. Bilfing on Cedar street, May 16. The group is planning to have a dinner party at Mrs. Staiger's tea room on May 23.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



Control of Peony Blight.

The most common complaint heard in connection with the growing of peonies is: "Why do the buds dry up instead of opening?" There may be several reasons, but generally it is the result of Botrytis, or peony blight. Peony blight can be detected in the early spring by the fact that the young shoots of infected plants wilt and topple over.

The majority of the buds on an infected plant turn black, as shown in the Garden-Graph, while other infected buds may become covered with a gray mold. Any flowers which succeed in developing on an infected plant are usually deformed.

Sanitation is one of the best methods of controlling peony blight. Collect and burn old stalks, leaves or other trash about the plants. Following this, spray the plants with Bordeau mixture as the young shoots start growth, or keep the foliage dusted with copper-lime compound. During the summer remove and burn any infected buds, flowers, leaves or stems.

Since the disease winters over, cut out the old stems of infected plants just below the soil level and burn them as part of the autumn clean-up. If the blight is particularly severe, it will pay to remove the soil for several inches around the crowns of the plants. Replace the infected soil with uncontaminated garden soil, and top this with a one-inch layer of clean sand.

SPEED CITY'S CLEAN-UP, FIRE HAZARD DRIVE

Two Civic Groups Arrange For Chicago Speaker to Address School Children.

The Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Association of Commerce were rapidly completing plans today for the annual spring Clean up—fire prevention week scheduled for May 5 to May 12.

Impetus will be added to the campaign by J. Burr Taylor, special representative of the Western Acturial Bureau of Chicago, who will emphasize the fire prevention and clean-up principals to more than 6,000 Mansfield school children.

Taylor, an authority on fire safety will address assemblies at each of the city schools during the week on the subject of fire prevention in its relation to life and property.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and officers from the state fire marshal's office will be in Mansfield to conduct fire drills at the schools. Seeburger has also invited the public to inspect all of the fire stations during the week.

Reminders to the public to join in the clean-up, paint-up, plant-up and fix-up campaign have been prepared by the J. A. C. and will be distributed among school pupils to take home to their parents.

Sent to Schools.

The reminders will be distributed in the schools in the section of the city the day before that particular area is to be covered by four city trucks that will haul away all rubbish placed in containers at the curb.

The clean-up schedule calls for the collection of rubbish in each of the city's six wards on scheduled days.

The schedule is: Monday, First Ward; Tuesday, Second Ward; Wednesday, Third Ward; Thursday, Fourth Ward; Friday, Fifth Ward; Saturday, Sixth Ward.

FATE STEPS IN

ROY, N. M.—(INS)—Fate betrayed 73-year-old Patrick Badley, who for 15 years maintained a hermits existence in a rock cave west of this town. Badley was induced to come into town and take a house. The little frame house caught fire a week after he moved into it and he was trapped in the flames and burned to death.

19 SENIOR HIGH PUPILS TO SEEK SCHOLARSHIPS

Leave for Kent Tomorrow to Compete in District and State Contest.

Nineteen Senior high school students will go to Kent tomorrow to compete in the annual district-state scholarship tests to be held at Kent State university.

The competing students are winners of an elimination contest held at the school recently. Winners in the Kent tests will compete in the state examinations later this month. About 2,000 high school students from northeastern Ohio are expected to take part in the tests.

Go With Students.

John C. Stout, chairman of the Senior high school test committee, and Jesse Beer, principal, will accompany the students.

Those who will compete and the subjects in which they will take examinations are: Clara Ivanich and Gertrude Torski, biology; Mary Beer and David Gibson, chemistry; William Seiler and Robert Sheriff, physics; Winifred Bauer, algebra 1; Todd Strohminger and Parker Long, plane geometry; Julia Fishback and Betty Bell, American history; William Dietrichson and Robert Perry, world history; Lois Curry and Audrey Anglin, 10th year English; Oscar Klein and Marian Lutz, 11th year English; Virginia Casperson, 12th year English and Hobart Adams, bookkeeping 1.

The 9-A class of John Simpson junior high school will be host to students of three Senior high school classes at a dance, "The Maypole Swing," tonight in the Simpson gymnasium.

Members of the 10-B, 10-A and 11-B classes at Senior high, who attended the junior high school during the period the new building was under construction, will be guests at the affair.

IMPORTS DROP

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—(INS)—Imports of the U. S. Territory of Puerto Rico from the continental mainland were in 1939 15 per cent below their level for 1938, according to the Chamber of Commerce of Puerto Rico.

DANCES AT 97

Marietta Woman Isn't Adverse to Taking Little Nip.

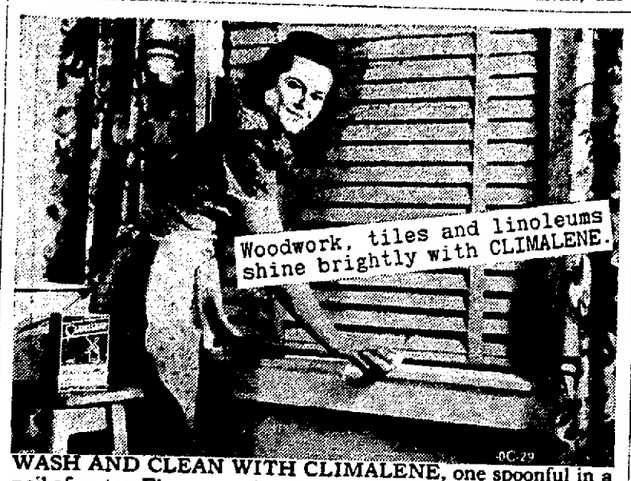
MARIETTA—(AP)—Mrs. Louisa M. Priest at 97 has a twinkle in her eye and still likes to dance.

During the Civil war, she became the bride and widow of a Confederate soldier, then married a Union soldier from Ohio. He died 11 years ago.

"I come from mighty clean blood," she says in explanation of her longevity. She eats "most anything—such as beef steaks." Mrs. Priest doesn't smoke, but isn't adverse to taking "a little nip."

"Oh yes, I still can dance a little," she says, her eyes bright. Mostly, however, she sits and hems handkerchiefs—without use of glasses—and "once upon a time I used to could fiddle."

The origin of insurance has been ascribed to the emperor Claudius about 43 A. D.



WASH AND CLEAN WITH CLIMALENE, one spoonful in a pail of water. Floors, woodwork, painted walls and tiles shine like new, quicker and easier. For CLIMALENE dissolves grease, dirt and grime. Your grocer has it in 10c and 25c packages.
